

Saxbe to tell Hoover's FBI 'dirty tricks'

By JEREMIAH O'LEARY and ORR KELLY
Washington Star News

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe plans to make public Monday details of FBI counterintelligence programs, secretly authorized over a period of 15 years by the late director J. Edgar Hoover, which used "dirty tricks" methods to disrupt and neutralize subversive organizations.

A 21-page draft report on counterintelligence programs, which went by the code name "cointelpro," has been prepared for Saxbe by a study committee headed by Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen.

THE COMMITTEE, made up of four representatives of the Justice Department's criminal division and three FBI officials designated by FBI Director Clarence Kelley, said in the draft that some of the "cointelpro" operations "can only be considered abhorrent in a free society."

The organizations against which "cointelpro" was directed from 1956 until it was terminated in 1971 were categorized in a Hoover directive as being: espionage groups; white hate groups, the Communist Party USA; Special Operations; black extremists; the Socialist Workers Party and the new left.

The draft report said FBI documents furnished by Kelley showed that Hoover specifically authorized all seven programs under "cointelpro." It added that there is "no indication in bureau files" that these programs were either approved by or made known to any attorney general or any individual in the Department of Justice.

Five of the programs directed against domestic organizations led to 2,337 operations by FBI agents around the nation.

The activities of the FBI over the 15-year span included:

—Furnishing clivc and religious leaders and organizations with information that would gain their support in promoting pressure on state and local governments, employers and landlords to disrupt the suspected groups.

—Leaks to newspapers and reporters friendly to the FBI about the arrest records of individuals in the group under investigation.

—Sending of anonymous letters about suspected individuals to disrupt their campaigns for election to local office.

—An anonymous phone call to a defense attorney after a federal prosecution had resulted in a mistrial to advise him, evidently falsely, that one of the defendants had been an FBI informant.

—Anonymous communications to family members of suspected individuals advising them of "immoral or radical" activities of the individuals.

—Sending anonymous or fictitious materials to members or groups to create dissension and cause disruption.

—Informing employers, credit bureaus and creditors of the immoral or radical activities of members of the Communist Party USA.

—Establishing sham organizations to cause disruption among members of five different Ku Klux Klan groups.

Besides the specific categories of "cointelpro" activity, the investigating committee found in FBI files approximately 20 miscellaneous FBI actions which it called "egregious examples." They included:

—Investigating the love life of a group leader for dissemination to the press. (A number of Washington reporters were informed by FBI agents of an alleged tape recording involving the extramarital affairs of the late Rev. Martin Luther King. The report to Saxbe does not identify the case reported by the Peterson Committee.)

—Use of the citizen band radio on the same frequency as radios being used by demonstrators to disrupt their demonstration. (This technique, it is known, was used by the FBI in Washington during the 1969 inaugural against about 500 new left activists. It caused them to assemble at the wrong place and thus miss the opportunity to demonstrate at the inauguration parade.)

The Petersen Committee was asked to determine whether there is any potential criminal or civil liability against the U.S. Government or individual FBI officials; the legality, necessity and wisdom of such programs and the need for appropriate standards and controls in event such programs are ever reactivated.

However, the report adds, "a fair, accurate and comprehensive understanding of the various 'cointelpro' activities undertaken by the FBI is possible only in the light of the context and climate in which the programs were established."

"Moreover," the report declares, "the overwhelming bulk of the activities carried on under the program were legitimate and proper intelligence and investigative practices and techniques."

The report does not shed any light on why all the programs were abruptly terminated by Hoover in late 1971.

Auto industry layoffs mount Big Chrysler shutdown seen

Combined News Services

DETROIT — Chrysler Corp. will shut down its U.S. car assembly plants and some manufacturing facilities for the month of December, sources in the auto industry said Friday.

Chrysler would neither confirm nor deny the report, but an industry insider said the firm ordered "zero" parts from suppliers for next week. That would indicate many component plant workers will likely be laid off along with assemblers, sources say.

Chrysler employs about 100,000 production workers. More than one-third are assemblers. If the entire system were to shut down, sources estimate 113,000 workers would be laid off.

Meanwhile, Chrysler, Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp. all announced layoffs Friday.

Chrysler said it would not reopen — as previously announced — its assembly plant at Newark, Del., but would keep it closed indefinitely. That will keep 3,800 workers at home.

Ford said that it will lay off 9,250 blue collar workers starting Monday, swelling the industry's present total of temporarily or permanently unemployed to 92,439.

General Motors Corp., which has idled 7,154 workers in the past two days, said it would lay off an additional 550 for one week starting Monday at its Packard Electric Division in Warren, Ohio.

Ford said it would shut down assembly lines in San Jose, Kansas City and Dearborn, idling 7,000 workers for one week.

In addition, Ford said it is permanently laying off 1,200 workers at eight Michigan facilities and temporarily laying off an additional 450 workers at Dearborn, Livonia and Utica, Mich.

So far GM has idled or announced layoffs for 50,214 workers, Ford 20,825 and Chrysler 21,400.

A spokesman for Chrysler said mounting inventories of unsold new cars had reached a "critical level."

"We are still going through and revising our production schedule. No decision has been made" on December layoffs, he said.

Rumors of pending shutdowns have been swirling throughout the Chrysler system for two days, according to spokesmen for the United Auto Workers.

Sources in the industry say it is likely that the nation's No. 3 automaker will go through with the shutdown plans. One source said he believes the company may leave open its intermediate car assembly plant in St. Louis.

It is estimated that Chrysler's stockpile of 1975 models was 380,000 on Oct. 31, enough to supply Chrysler dealers for at least 110 days. Chrysler's daily selling rate in the first 10 days of November was only 2,300.

One Wall Street analyst said Friday that inventories are critically high at about 69 days, and at 110 days, "definitely some corrective action has to be taken."

Rocky kin to seek tax rebate on book

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nelson Rockefeller's brother Laurance testified Friday he intends to claim a $58,172 income tax deduction on the loss he suffered in the publishing of a biography critical of his brother's 1970 Democratic opponent for New York's governorship.

Laurance Rockefeller testified at the confirmation hearing on Nelson's vice presidential nomination that he considered the project a business venture — not a political undertaking — and so "as a matter of principle" he intends to try to deduct his losses resulting from the book's sluggish sales.

"I hate to involve the United States government in paying a loss for something we wish we had not done, but as a matter of principle I hope we recover," he told the Senate Rules Committee.

"I wish you luck," replied Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I.

The committee completed three days of hearings devoted mostly to inquiring whether the creation of a dummy Delaware corporation to publish the book was an attempt to conceal the Rockefeller role in financing the project — and whether this represented a misuse of wealth in politics.

The book, Arthur J. Goldberg: The Old and the New, was published in 1970 and written by Victor Lasky, the conservative author of books critical of John and Robert Kennedy.

Goldberg, a former Supreme Court justice, called it "libelous" and "pornographic."

Committee Chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., said it was clear to him that Laurance "financed the book through a very devious laundering scheme."

Nonetheless, he told reporters he did not feel the incident disqualified Nelson from becoming vice president. He also accused President Ford of trying to stampee Congress into approving the nomination, but said, "We're not going to be stamped."

The committee heard from a succession of Rockefeller lawyers involved in the book project. Most conceded it was published out of political, as well as financial, motives.

Lasky took the witness stand at the end of the day and said he thought it was a good book. He said he disagreed with Goldberg's characterizations.

"I think Mr. Goldberg sort of lost his equilibrium

Ford rejects bid to increase food aid

ROME (AP) — President Ford, rejecting pressure from three leading Democratic senators, refused Friday to grant an immediate million-ton increase in food aid for needy nations.

The request, made in a cable to the White House last week, was spearheaded by Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, George McGovern of South Dakota and Dick Clark of Iowa. The senators are delegates at the World Food Conference here.

Ford's decision was announced at the food conference, which later adopted a measure strongly supported by the U.S. delegation urging nations to set aside money and food to ensure that 10 million tons of food grain are shipped annually to hungry nations.

who heads the American delegation.

He accused the senators of injecting partisan politics into the food conference and forcing the United States into a "defensive position."

Butz said that the United States is, and will remain, the world's No. 1 food donor and that a million-ton increase, amounting to $175 million, would have a bullish impact on the U.S. grain market.

"American citizens are having a tough time feeding their own families," said Anne Armstrong, counselor to President Ford. She called the request "unjust" and the work of "partisan politics."

McGovern said in Bonn, West Germany, where he flew for a two-day visit, that the White House decision was "a great mistake. We just can't take that kind of a stance. Are we going to just sit here and wait until the world food situation is 'catastrophic'?" If we wait a few more years we'll have people tearing their governments apart."

Humphrey called the request "modest" and an expression of humanitarian leadership during the 123-nation conference, which ends today.

Official's slaying upsets coal talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The slaying of a United Mine Workers official Friday night and failure of the union's bargaining council to approve a new contract threatened to further delay efforts at ending the nationwide coal strike.

Following the shooting and the bogging down of council deliberations on a proposed three-year contract, it appeared virtually certain that the strike would last at least three weeks.

STUNNED union officials planned to conduct a memorial service at the national UMW headquarters today for the slain official, Sam Littlefield, 54, of Bessemer, Ala.

UMW officials said it was unlikely that any further meetings of the bargaining council would be held over the weekend.

Littlefield, who was the UMW district president for Alabama, was fatally shot in the head outside his hotel room Friday during an apparent hold-up attempt, authorities said.

Union officials said Littlefield was shot minutes after he returned to his hotel room from a meeting of the 38-member bargaining council, on which he served.

The council, which must approve the proposed contract before it can be submitted to the union membership, had recessed for the second day without a decision on the contract.

Emerging from the meeting, UMW Vice President Mike Trbovich told newsmen, "I think we're in for a three-week strike now."

TRBOVICH said he still is optimistic that the tentative agreement to end the coal walkout that began Tuesday could be approved.

But he acknowledged there was serious disagreement over a number of the 31 articles in the proposal.

Union sources said the bargaining council probably would recommend that the negotiating team go back to industry to reopen bargaining to handle what they called "house-cleaning chores."

The government has estimated a four-week strike could cause up to 400,000 layoffs and an eight-week walkout upwards of 1.7 million layoffs.

City leaders remain silent on FBI probe

By MARY NEISWENDER
Staff Writer

City officials, under subpoena to appear before a Federal Grand Jury looking into organized crime's influence on Long Beach government, maintained a tight-lipped silence Friday as FBI investigators continued their probe of at least two city businesses.

Although some officials would talk to newsmen "off the record," none wanted their name used. However, all admitted the FBI questioning centered around Ringo, Inc., and the Long Beach Amusement Co.

Ringo and C. Ray Shira, its promoter and operator, first surfaced in Long Beach early in 1962 when the former mortician-aerospace worker asked for a city business license for the game.

The city tax collector rejected Shira's license application on advice of the city prosecutor and police chief, who maintained operation of the game would violate the city's antigambling ordinance. Shira appealed to the City Council but the question was never explored at length because the city code at that time didn't authorize appeals in business license denials.

Fortunately, however, for Shira, the city code was changed and on his next try for a license in 1964 he took his initial rejection to the City Council on appeal.

Despite a trip by the councilmen to a garage where the Ringo equipment was stored to test their skill, the city fathers voted down the license.

Voting against granting the permit in 1964 were Councilmen Ray Kealer, Emmet Sullivan, Bob Crow, William Graham and James Hayes. Those voting to give the business license to Shira were Bert Bond, William Grant and R. E. (Pat) Corbett. Councilman Edwin Wade was absent.

Five years later Shira tried again.

Despite a warning by Thomas Zeiger, chief deputy for the city prosecutor's office, that a vote to permit Ringo to operate would be a violation of law, councilmen voted the permit on a four-to-three vote.

The four — Bert Bond,

Wayne Sharp, L. F. (Ted) Cruchley and Russell Rubley. Voting against were Dr. Thomas Clark, Edwin Wade and then Councilman Ray Kealer. Two of the nine councilmen — Emmet Sullivan and Paul Deats — were absent.

Former Councilman Crow said Thursday that FBI agents specifically zeroed in on Shira and his operations.

"Apparently the people now affiliated with Ringo are shady, slightly underworld characters, and this is why the FBI force came into the picture," Crow said.

What the FBI is after, Crow maintains, is how and why the controversial Ringo permit finally got through the council.

FBI agents asked if any bribes had made, and he told them there had been.

Interviewed by newsmen following the vote to approve Ringo, Bond — the most outspoken advocate of Ringo — claimed the vote was "absolutely legal" and that whether Ringo is a game of

Xerox must share its patents

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — In a highly unusual antitrust move, the Federal Trade Commission announced Friday that the Xerox Corp. had agreed to stimulate competition by giving its competitors access to critical copier patents and technical expertise. Xerox currently captures 85 per cent of the highly lucrative copying-machine market and last year posted earnings of $300 million. The Federal Trade Commission said the corporation's total control over some 2,000 critical patents virtually assured that competitors would be frozen out. An official of the FTC's bureau of competition said savings to consumers could amount to $150 million a year or more with stiffer competition and that the increased competition should trim back the 10.3 per cent profit Xerox earns on its sales to bring the margin closer to the 4.5 per cent profit for manufacturers generally. An estimated 20 companies now are on the verge of jumping in to compete with Xerox. Under the agreement, Xerox is required to provide current patents and those developed in the next six years to any company that asks for them.

Dollar weakens in Europe

The dollar weakened throughout Europe on Friday in brisk trading spurred by reports that Germany planned to revalue the mark upward. Gold eased back from record highs, but a decision by South Africa to withhold some of its gold from the bullion market was expected to push the price per ounce above $200 in the next week. Dealers said central banks in Zurich and Frankfurt were buying dollars to keep the rate from falling still lower. They said funds have been moving from dollars to German marks and Swiss francs since West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt said Wednesday that he favors letting the mark rise. Schmidt said the move would help reduce Germany's big foreign trade surplus and help other members of the European Common Market with balance-of-payment problems. The activity in the currency markets appeared to take some of the heat off the recent gold-buying flurry. The metal hit a record high of $191 an ounce in London on Thursday, but backed down to $187.25 by closing Friday.

Boost to China ties

TOKYO — The promotion Friday of Chiao Kuan-hua to be China's foreign minister appears to bode well for Chinese-American detente, according to experts here. The Peking announcement said Chiao's appointment was a routine change. But some observers saw a link between it and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's visit to Peking on Nov. 25-29. Diplomats point out that Chiao has long worked closely with Premier Chou En-lai, the architect of detente with the U.S., and they say Chou may have appointed him to intensify the dialogue with the U.S. at a time of increasing U.S.-Soviet detente. Kissinger travels to Peking the day after President Ford meets in Vladivostok with Soviet party chief Leonid Brezhnev, and the secretary is expected to reassure the Chinese that no agreements were reached inimical to Peking's interests.

Old-time trouble brews for 'Witch of Salem'

Combined News Services

The "White Witch of Salem" is stirring old-time fears of black magic on the North Shore of Massachusetts.

But unlike her 17th Century sisters who were tried and hanged, Laurie Cabot, 41, is invoking her First Amendment right to free speech and quoting the words of John F. Kennedy.

A self-proclaimed witch who teaches a course on her craft as a practical science at Salem State College, she is scheduled to address an adult education class in nearby Georgetown next week. But her coming appearance in Georgetown has met with resistance from some of the townspeople.

"Witchcraft violates our beliefs and is against the faith, and it is not anything that anyone should be playing around with," said Rev. Donald Bentley, interim pastor of Georgetown's First Baptist church.

Members of the church signed a petition reading, "We the undersigned are completely opposed to the public appearance of Laurie Cabot, the White Witch of Salem...and to the public appearance or practice of any witch in the town of Georgetown."

"You'd think we were back in the 1600s," says Ms. Cabot — who uses the 20th Century designation Ms.

"It seems like we're reliving sort of the witch trial thing. It's the same kind of psychic hysteria," Ms. Cabot said. "Psychologically it must be a basic fear of self, because demons and spirits exist in your own brain."

Reformed

Reformed militant radical Jane Alpert, 27, who surrendered Thursday after spending more than four years as an "underground" fugitive, took the second step on the road back to freedom Friday by going to Manhattan Federal Court for a court-ordered visit to the probation office. She faces a possible 10 years in prison.

Hunted since May 1970 as an admitted conspirator in the 1969 bombings of two federal buildings in Manhattan, the 1967 Swarthmore honors graduate said, "I'm home again with my family. That's of tremendous importance to me."

Her lawyer said the reasons for Miss Alpert's flight were now gone. "The war is over and the man she loved and for whom she pleaded guilty is now dead," he said.

The reference was to Samuel Melville, the 34-year-old reputed leader of a terrorist group who was arrested with Miss Alpert and later sentenced to Attica prison, where he was killed in the September 1971 prison uprising.

Pardoned

Gov. Reagan granted a full and unconditional pardon Friday to former Oakland Mayor John C. Houlihan, convicted three years ago of stealing $99,000 from an elderly widow's estate. Reagan granted the pardon on the recommendation of the Alameda County Superior Court.

Houlihan was mayor of Oakland from 1961 to 1966. He was convicted in September of that year of stealing $99,000 from the estate of Sirella Whitlock while he was the conservator of the estate.

In his executive decree, Reagan noted that Houlihan, now executive director of the Institute for Local Self-Government, served two years and a month in prison out of a 10-year term and was discharged from parole in April 1971. Since then, he has demonstrated his qualifications for rehabilitation and restoration of his rights as a citizen, Reagan said.

Exciting day

Frank Gilmore was taken to New York Criminal Court Friday on charges of trying to murder a police officer. But while he was waiting to be called by the bailiff, his common-law wife, Flossie Cotton, gave birth to a baby boy in the courtroom.

At noon, Judge Archie Gorfinkel was presiding over what promised to be a routine day in his Bronx court. The room was filled with about 100 police officers, lawyers, court attendants and relatives of prisoners.

Suddenly, the subdued drone of day-to-day justice was pierced by a shrill cry from the middle of the room.

"Oh my God!" Miss Cotton screamed. The obviously pregnant 22-year-old woman clutched her stomach and Gorfinkel, seeing she was in labor, cleared the courtroom.

Police officer Walter Buchanan, 31, took charge. As court attendants scurried for hot water and towels, Buchanan went to work helping Miss Cotton in her delivery in front of the judge's bench.

LAURIE CABOT...An unwanted witch

Guilty

A 20-year-old Manhattan youth Friday pleaded guilty to stealing a bicycle and a tennis racquet from John F. Kennedy Jr., 13-year-old son of the late President.

The defendant, Robert Lopez, entered the plea in Manhattan Supreme Court before Acting Supreme Court Justice Irving Lang, who set sentencing for Jan. 8.

Lopez was charged with stealing the $145, 10-speed Italian bicycle, and the tennis racquet from young Kennedy as the boy was riding to a tennis lesson in Central Park last May 14. Lang ordered the racquet, which was found in Lopez' apartment, returned to John. The bicycle was not recovered.

Miffed

Herbert Klein, former press secretary to Richard Nixon, criticized the major television networks Friday for refusing to televise live President Ford's press conference in Phoenix.

"It's not enough to say the press conference might have been too long or it might not be professional because it came from Phoenix," Klein told a civic group. "The networks have opened themselves to justified criticism when you examine the caliber of the questions asked and the inconsistency of their own policies."

Ford was in Phoenix Thursday to address the national convention of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi.

Early start

President Ford, getting a jump on other candidates for the job he has held three months, declared his firm intention Friday to run in 1976 for a full term in the White House.

Ford's decision to switch from a "probable" candidate to a "definite" candidate was disclosed through a spokesman almost casually at a routine White House news briefing.

A reporter who noted there was speculation Ford was ready to declare his candidacy asked if the rumors were correct.

"Yes," replied Press Secretary Ron Nessen. "He intends to run in 1976." The reason, Nessen said, was simple: "He enjoys being President."

Safety group stuck with unsafe buttons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission disclosed Friday that it is recalling 80,000 of its own lapel buttons promoting toy safety.

The commission said the buttons have too-sharp edges, paint with too much lead and clips that can be broken off and swallowed by small children.

The yellow buttons picture a brown toy bear and black lettering proclaiming: "Think Toy Safety."

The buttons were sent to the commission's 14 field offices for distribution to groups interested in toy safety. The commission said none of the buttons had been distributed.

Routine safety tests by the commission revealed that paint on the buttons contained 1.97 per cent lead. The federal law policed by the commission limits lead in paint to .5 per cent and reduces the allowable lead content to .06 per cent at the end of this year unless the chairman decides otherwise.

A spokesman said the commission probably will pay the $1,700 bill for the buttons to the Lewis Co. of Washington, since the agency didn't specify in its contract that the buttons be safe.

The spokesman said the buttons will be destroyed.

Says agency tried to protect itself

Cover-up defense focusing on CIA role

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the prosecution case nearly completed, the controversial role of the Central Intelligence Agency in the aftermath of the Watergate burglary began emerging Friday as a major defense strategy at the cover-up trial.

The supersecret CIA has long denied any involvement in the bugging or its cover-up, but U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica ruled that at least a limited exploration of CIA actions is permissible as a defense tactic.

He indicated he may call Richard M. Helms, CIA director at the time of the bugging and now ambassador to Iran, as the court's own witness so neither the prosecution nor the defense will have to "vouch for his credibility" on the crucial issues involved.

Five former aides to Richard M. Nixon are accused of conspiracy in the cover-up. The trial is now seven weeks old.

The prosecution, which so far has called 24 witnesses, announced it would wrap up its case Wednesday or Thursday after playing nearly two dozen of Nixon's White House tapes, many of which have never before been made public. The jury has heard only nine of the tapes so far.

"It looks like we've got a chance, a good chance, of finishing this case before the (Christmas) holidays," Sirica told the jury, which has been sequestered since Sept. 30.

How soon the trial can be wrapped up depends heavily on whether Nixon is well enough to provide testimony for the defense. His lawyer advised the court he would meet with the former president this weekend to see if he objects to being examined by court-appointed physicians.

With the CIA's role, if any, in the Watergate case mushrooming into a major issue, Deputy CIA Director Vernon A. Walters testified he knew of no agency involvement and of no reason why the FBI's investigation of the bugging would have compromised CIA operations abroad.

The prosecution contends that Nixon's decision just six days after the June 17, 1972, Watergate arrests to have the CIA block the FBI from pursuing leads into Mexico — which would have linked the bugging to the Nixon campaign — was a major element in the cover-up plot.

Prosecutor James F. Neal contended that tapes of three meetings Nixon had with his chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman, one of the cover-up defendants, make it "pristine clear" that the order was to protect Nixon and his top aides and not to protect covert operations of the CIA.

Sirica ordered the three June 23, 1972, tapes, which the jury heard last Monday, replayed with jurors out of the courtroom so he could evaluate Haldeman's defense strategy.

That evolving strategy is intended to prove that the CIA briefly blocked the FBI investigation of the Mexican connection not as part of any cover-up but to protect its own covert operations south of the border.

"How far do you want to go in cross-examination?" Sirica asked Haldeman lawyer Frank J. Strickler.

"I want to go far enough to show that there were legitimate and definite concerns by the CIA that a full-scale FBI investigation might uncover CIA operations in Mexico that did exist at that time," Strickler replied.

"Not to put the blame on the CIA (for the bugging), but that there was a legitimate concern this investigation might compromise CIA assets or uncover non-Watergate matters."

The CIA has consistently denied it had any part in the cover-up.

Nixon 'needs tapes for book'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon has contracted with a "major publisher" to write a book about his presidential years, but the project is being delayed because his White House material has not been transferred to California, a one-time White House aide argued Friday.

Franklin R. Gannon, former special assistant in the White House, said in an affidavit presented at a hearing on Nixon's suit to gain possession of the tapes and documents that an unnamed "major publisher" has agreed to bring out the book Nixon plans to write.

But his aides have been prevented from preparing the material because of delays in transferring the tapes and documents to California, Gannon said.

President Ford signed an agreement Sept. 6 giving Nixon and the government joint control of the material temporarily, with Nixon to control it completely at the end of five years.

The Watergate Special Prosecutor petitioned the court to delay transfer so the materials would remain accessible to the prosecutor's office, and Friday's hearing was to determine whether the temporary restraining order now holding the material at the White House is to be extended by a preliminary injunction to prevent transfer until the court can decide who owns the material.

"I am informed that a major publisher in this country has agreed with the former president to publish a book to be written by him," Gannon's affidavit said.

"I believe that Mr. Nixon is obligated by contract to complete the first half of his book by April, 1976, and the present delay and any continuing delay makes it increasingly difficult to meet this deadline," it added.

"A great deal of the preparation of these materials for Mr. Nixon's use could be under way at this time if the materials were available in California even though Mr. Nixon himself has been ill and hospitalized and unable to work directly on this project."

Nixon's attorney, Herbert J. Miller, also introduced under seal an Aug. 15 memorandum and 11 grand jury subpoenas that he said would show the wide range of demands the Office of the Special Prosecutor is making for the White House materials.

Judge Charles R. Ritchey agreed to examine the memo and subpoenas privately after Miller said they include names of many innocent persons who could be damaged if they were made public.

Sugar prices up again to 66c lb.

Petroleum drain held major cause

Raging inflation sets 27-year U.S. record

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation's biggest sugar company Friday raised the wholesale price of grocery sugar 7 per cent to 65.9 cents a pound in the third price hike in as many weeks and more increases were in the offing.

The action by Amstar Corp., which markets sugar under the Domino label, was certain to touch off more price hikes on sugar purchased by consumers.

Amstar also raised by more than 10 per cent the price of industrial sugar, signaling higher prices for such products as soft drinks, candy and sugar-coated cereals.

Amstar raised the price of 12 five-pound bundles of grocery sugar to $39.54, or 65.9 cents a pound, from $36.90, or 61.5 cents a pound.

A spokesman for Amstar said the higher wholesale and industrial prices were prompted by higher prices for raw sugar on world markets. "The raw sugar price has been going up almost every day since September," he said. "We are catching up. We're doing what we have to do here."

The spot price of raw sugar on the New York market Friday rose 2 cents, the maximum allowable increase for one day, to 58 cents a pound, indicating still higher wholesale and retail prices in the next few weeks.

BASED on the current raw price and the addition of costs for refining, packaging and wholesaling, the consumer price could soar to 80 cents a pound or more in the near future.

Since Jan. 1, when a pound of sugar sold for 18 cents, the supermarket price has skyrocketed more than 300 per cent to 60 to 65 cents a pound.

THE PROFITS of the major U.S. sugar refiners and producers also have risen sharply in the past three months. Amstar's profits were up 250 per cent in the last quarter, and Great Western United Corp., the nation's largest beet sugar producer, reported a 1,120 per cent increase in earnings.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation is raging at its worst prolonged rate in 27 years while production of goods and services is in its longest slump in 14 years, the government reported Friday.

And petroleum imports, a primary cause of the conflicting problems of inflation and recession, drained $5.5 billion more from the United States in the July-September period, the Commerce Department said.

When money leaves the country, inflationary pressures are increased because there are fewer dollars for purchasing goods. The automobile industry, for example, has the highest inventories in history, the Federal Reserve Board said Friday.

For the first nine months of 1974, the Commerce Department estimated the inflation rate was 11.1 per cent, the worst since 1948-49 when the end of World War II price controls sent prices up 11.8 per cent.

Commerce also said the Gross National Product, the term used for the nation's total output of goods and services, dipped 2.1 per cent in the third quarter of 1974. The GNP declined 1.6 per cent in the second quarter and 7 per cent in the first.

Commerce Department analysts said the three quarters of receding GNP were the longest since 1960.

The GNP calculations for the July-September quarter were improved over preliminary estimates announced last month, but the cause of the upward revision was due to an inflationary rate that was worse than earlier figures showed.

Commerce said the GNP $1.415 trillion on an annual adjusted basis in the third quarter, an increase of $31.0 billion from the second quarter. But when inflation was removed, the GNP was estimated at $822.7 billion, down from the $827.1 billion in the second quarter.

The Federal Reserve Board said the economy continued to lag in October with the output of factories, mines and utilities down 0.6 per cent.

The Federal Reserve said industrial production is expected to be worse in November because steel mills sharply increased output last month in anticipation of the coal strike and "weakening sales of new domestic cars have prompted layoffs and plant closings."

The new third quarter figures were revised upward from preliminary estimates of $821.1 billion released in October.

The major upward revisions were for consumer spending and private investment. But Commerce said consumers financed their increased spending by cutting savings by $6.9 billion.

Nixon resting well at home

By KRIS SHERMAN
Staff Writer

A weak and fatigued Richard M. Nixon was reported resting comfortably in a hospital bed at his San Clemente villa Friday, but he is still faced with the decision of whether or not to allow a team of court-appointed doctors to examine him.

Aides said the former president, who began Thursday what is expected to be a lengthy period of recuperation, is so weakened by his illness that the mere act of speaking exhausts him.

"He's just very weak," said an aide in a telephone interview. "It tires him even to talk after a while. He gets winded very easily."

"He is staying in bed today," said another aide. "His doctors have ordered him to remain there and contact with his few key staff members is very limited."

The 61-year-old former chief executive, who suffers phlebitis (blood clots) in his left leg, was released from Memorial Hospital Medical Center of Long Beach Thursday following a 23-day hospitalization.

He reportedly lost about 15 pounds during his confinement.

A small clamp, designed to prevent clots from traveling through the bloodstream to the heart or lungs, where they could be fatal, was fitted to Nixon's left iliac vein during surgery Oct. 29.

The former president's physician, John Lungren, earlier had said that Nixon had not yet been informed of the court-appointed doctors scheduled to examine him.

But by Friday, Nixon apparently had been told of the three-doctor panel, which was appointed by U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica to examine him and determine if he is too ill to testify at the Watergate coverup trial.

Sirica directed the panel to examine Nixon and report on the state of his health by Nov. 29. However, Dr. Charles Hufnagel, chairman of the panel, said the doctors will not examine Nixon without his consent.

Sirica asked Nixon's attorney, Herbert J. Miller, to report back by Tuesday on whether the former president will resist the medical inquiry.

Miller said he planned a trip to San Clemente within the next two or three days "to sit down and discuss matters" with Nixon.

Lungren, meanwhile, said he would "welcome" an examination of Nixon by the court-appointed doctors but expressed concern that the checkup would be an undue strain on his patient.

Lungren also said he was concerned that Nixon's blood pressure—which has been fluctuating to dangerous levels—would be affected by the stress of another examination.

The former president still is taking oral doses of Coumadin, an anticoagulant (blood-thinning) drug, and Lungren said he feared Nixon might experience internal bleeding as a side effect of the drug, particularly if his blood pressure were elevated.

Dr. Eldon B. Hickman, one of the surgeons who operated on Nixon, said he felt an examination of the former president by outside doctors was "unnecessary."

Hickman said that subjecting Nixon to further tests certainly would add stress for a man who has just been released from the hospital.

Buying an audience

Charles Hook, who described himself as a wealthy pacifist, tosses money to a crowd in Manhattan Friday to encourage passersby to read a leaflet he was handing out. Hook said he gave away 200 one dollar bills; his leaflet said he was a victim of "secret plots" and other attempts to influence his political position and thwart his peace plan.

5 more youths seized in robberies of old women

Long Beach juvenile investigators arrested five teen-agers Friday in a continuing crackdown against a gang allegedly responsible for a series of robberies in the downtown homes of elderly women.

The five, arrested about noon, included two 13-year-olds, two 14-year-olds and one youth of 15, said investigators C.S. Roberson and John R. Noble.

The officers said they are still looking for other youths in connection with the robberies committed over the past two months. The new arrests brought to nine the number of teen-agers held in the case.

Four youths from 14 to 16 years old were arrested last Tuesday after a 70-year-old woman and her 77-year-old companion were robbed at knifepoint.

Other victims in the series of robberies were threatened or beaten, authorities said, and some may not have reported the crimes because of threats of retaliation.

Petitions were filed in Long Beach juvenile court Friday alleging the first four took part in the robberies. The four appeared at a pre-detention hearing, said police juvenile

Sgt. Kenneth Welch. He said they denied the allegations.

The petition in one youth's case alleges 15 counts, said the sergeant. The other youths face 12, 10 and 5 counts.

At Friday's hearing, private attorneys were appointed by the court to represent the four, said Welch.

An adult also has been arrested in connection with the case. He is Richard Max Smith, 40, of 1801 California Ave., said police. Smith was arrested Tuesday and booked on a charge of receiving stolen property, they said.

The court set next Wednesday as the date for what authorities refer to informally as "a Dennis H. hearing" for the four youths.

That process, said Welch, is named after a juvenile case that led to an appellate decision requiring the district attorney's office to present evidence-based reasons why the youths should remain in custody pending adjudication of their case.

Another issue decided at Friday's hearing was jurisdiction of the case, said Welch.

Complex cases often are sent to the county's central juvenile jurisdiction for hearing, he said. But senior Long Beach Commissioner Donald Pitts agreed the hearings should remain in Long Beach.

Wheels too slow for freeway travel

SALINAS (UPI) — L.D. Sheldon, 63, was going too slow on U.S. 101, a four-lane highway, the California Highway Patrol says.

Sheldon, piloting his wheelchair along the northbound lanes of the highway early Friday, got into a collision with an automobile.

U.S. checks military moves in Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Friday that reports of military moves in the Middle East were being checked here "on an urgent basis" and that he and President Ford reviewed possible contingencies Friday morning with Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger.

While apparently taking the reports seriously, Kissinger told a news conference that, "in our judgment, we are not in a situation of imminent conflict."

He said he did not believe the Soviet Union would heighten tensions in the Middle East just before Ford is scheduled to meet with Leonid I. Brezhnev in Vladivostok.

In fact, Kissinger said, there is "no evidence that the Soviet Union is encouraging war."

The report was said to have centered on Soviet buildup in Syria, the moving of Syrian equipment near the Golan Heights and Israeli planning for a possible preemptive strike against the Arabs.

Kissinger said he had seen the reports and, while they were under urgent study, he could not believe any major power would deliberately encourage war. He said the United States would oppose any idea that the problems of the region can be solved by military means.

Kissinger appealed to Moscow and all other parties to exercise "a restraining influence."

Ford and Kissinger leave Sunday for Japan, South Korea and Vladivostok. Afterward, the secretary will continue on to mainland China, where he predicted an improvement of relations with Washington, but no dramatic announcements.

Kissinger brushed aside suggestions that Ford will be taking risks in facing demonstrations in Japan while Nelson A. Rockefeller has not yet been confirmed as vice president. The secretary said the President had committed himself to the trip and attaches great importance to it in strengthening relations with Tokyo.

He said the trip to South Korea was essential so long as Ford was in the area.

In the minisummit with Brezhnev at Vladivostok, Kissinger said he hoped for further progress toward an agreement limiting offensive nuclear weapons and left open the possibility that an announcement would be made at the end of the Nov. 23-24 meeting.

Kissinger said that he has no plans to travel to the Middle East and that this is a time for "quiet diplomacy." He criticized Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat for not taking a "particularly moderate position" and said he sees no prospect for negotiations between Israel and Jordan.

Kissinger said Jordan's King Hussein has accepted the decision of 19 Arab heads of state that Arafat's Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) is the legitimate representative of 600,000 west bank Palestinians.

It will be up to Israel to decide whether to deal with the PLO. Echoing Ford's statement Thursday night in a Phoenix news conference, Kissinger said, "This is entirely a decision for Israel ... to make." He said the United States will not give Israel "any advice" on the subject.

because he was criticized," he said.

He said he was not "naive" and knew the book would be used for political purposes when New York attorney John Wells, a Republican political buff, proposed the project to him.

Laurance Rockefeller testified that the suggestion that he help finance the book came to him from a member of Nelson's staff but he never discussed the matter with Nelson directly. He said it was presented to him as a business venture and he considered it one when he put up $85,000.

Asked if he expected to make a profit, he said: "I thought I would and I could and I should."

"This is one investment I wish I had not made because it has proved to be an embarrassment to my brother Nelson and Mr. Justice Goldberg, who happens to be someone I admire," Rockefeller told the Senate Rules Committee.

Laurance also testified as the committee, itself showing weariness with the topic, was ending three days of televised hearings into whether the book's publication showed that the nominee had used his vast wealth in an improper manner to advance his political career.

Cannon charged that Laurance was involved with the dummy Delaware corporation that was created to cloak the Rockefeller family's financial involvement in the venture.

Cannon also accused Ford of trying to stamper Congress into approving the nomination.

Laurance testified he was told about the book venture by his brother's personal assistant.

"They were looking for stockholders and would I participate and help put together a group to finance the publication," Rockefeller said.

"I said that I did not have time to put together a group but that I would be willing to underwrite the venture. As it turned out, no other investors were forthcoming and I ended up making the entire investment, which I believe was $85,000."

"I am confident that I never discussed it with my brother Nelson," he said.

CITY LEADERS

ance or skill should be adjudicated in court.

"Somebody's trying to put me and the rest of these fellows in a position of defending ourselves," he said in an interview. "There's no reason to bring it up to a full council again — if a councilman wanted to be there, he had every right in the world to be there ... but council business must go on."

Bond, apparently under public pressure, changed his mind. On his motion the next week, the council reopened the matter and — without a full discussion, and, in fact, without ever mentioning the name Ringo — revoked the license.

The action to rescind was based on City Atty. Leonard Putnam's advice that the previous approval was null because the council could not authorize something which was contrary to city and state laws. Bond said he was doing so because a full council was not present.

Reporters at the time noted one "peculiarity" of the action. It was taken without the name Ringo being mentioned at any time. When Bond began to introduce his motion, other councilmen obviously knew to what he was referring, but some council spectators seemed puzzled about what the council was rescinding. The vote, however, was unanimous.

At this point, Shira took his battle to court and the court ruled that the license had been revoked illegally — without giving him a chance to appear — and upheld the first vote.

Ringo had won the battle.

When Shira tried to open up at various locations, stumbling blocks appeared in the form of zone problems, safety, etc.

Finally, the Long Beach Amusement Co. granted him a lease on a building at 150 Pike to accommodate some 200 hoop-throwing bingo players.

Shira and a growing number of Ringo players were happy for less than a week. Then police moved in and arrested the graying operator and four of his employees — including two well-known law enforcement agents. With Shira were Marvin Kobey, a longtime gambling figure who was pardoned in 1972 by then-president Richard Nixon from a federal prison, and Eddie Hagan, owner-operator of two Las Vegas gaming casinos.

And the battle resumed in court where it now awaits hearing — a hearing in which Shira will attempt to prove that Ringo is a game of skill and not an illegal game of chance.

The Long Beach Amusement Co., also singled out by FBI questioning of city aides, was voted a lease on prime Arena area land in March against the recommendations of City Manager John Mansell.

Mansell claimed the land was worth $50,000 a year rental, and the amusement firm was offering only $18,000. However, on a five-to-three vote, councilman approved the lease.

However, the city attorney's staff, apparently agreeing the fee was inadequate, refused to draft the lease, and City Attorney Leonard Putnam told the council their action was not illegal, but was made on the basis of insufficient evidence.

At a subsequent meeting councilmen voted to advertise for bids on the land. Both Councilman Bert Bond and Wayne Sharp opposed.

And this battle appears headed for court, as attorneys for the Amusement Company disagreed that the compensation was inadequate.

Tavern burglars enter through roof

Beer, cigarettes, a color television set, a radio and $62 in coins, valued together at $551 were taken from Duke's Tavern, 4254 Anaheim St., by burglars who tried on a roof vent to gain entry, Long Beach police said Friday.

CAR SHUTDOWN

All U.S. auto plants shut down between Christmas and New Year's as specified in contracts with the UAW. The first large layoffs in the auto industry came last December, two months after the Mideast Oil embargo began to chip away at sales.

UAW officials say they have been in constant contact with Chrysler officials, who "have assured us no decision has been made."

"But it doesn't look good," he said. According to the UAW spokesman, some workers have said that foremen have discussed the possibility of lengthy layoffs for next month.

A meeting of UAW officers and Chrysler Chairman Lynn Townsend set for Monday to discuss one Detroit plant would probably be expanded "considerably," said the UAW spokesman.

Chrysler reported last month it lost $8 million during the third quarter and has embarked on a drastic cost-cutting program, trimming production, white collar employment and its blue collar work force.

As of Monday, indefinite layoffs at Chrysler will total about 10 per cent of its work force, a company spokesman said.

The Newark plant, now closed indefinitely, was scheduled for a one-week shutdown last Monday. The plant makes compact Darts and Valiants.

About 69,000 of a total of about 730,000 auto workers remained on layoffs this week. Current figures show almost 25,000 more workers slated for indefinite or temporary layoffs in the upcoming weeks.

Industry sales nosedived 27 per cent this October compared with the same month last year. For the year, the industry trails its 1973 sales by 22 per cent.

Ford, the nation's second largest automaker, said it also is permanently furloughing 350 white collar workers at 13 auto assembly division operations and 250 at its glass plant in Nashville, Tenn.

In addition, Uniroyal Tire Co. said it was laying off 1,000 workers in a Detroit plant because of a drop in car sales.

The cutbacks came after car sales for the first 10 days of November fell more than 38 per cent from the same period a year ago.

The new car model year which started Oct. 1 for GM, Ford and Chrysler is off to its poorest start in a decade and industry analysts report 1.6 million unsold cars in inventory — enough to last about 68 selling day.

PRESS PUNCHY OVER PRESIDENTIAL PAJAMAS

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

The press can get piffingly punchy over a pair of pajamas. The former President's pajamas no less.

The PJ palaver began in the press conference room at Memorial Hospital Medical Center of Long Beach Thursday as reporters waited to interview doctors following the departure of former President Richard M. Nixon.

"He was wearing a dark blue bathrobe—and, say, those were white pajamas, weren't they?" one reporter inquired.

"Blue," replied another. "Ice blue."

"I say white," said another.

"Baby blue, or light blue," commented still another science writer. (Only the day before this writer had been pushing the problem of platelets with the doctors. Now he was into pajamas.)

"Well, they can't be white," said a distinguished newsman from one of the nation's leading newspapers. "Now I've researched this thing. I've gone to Sears and to Penney's, and I tell you that you can't get white pajamas. So they must be blue."

"White," yelled someone.

"They're white," an Independent, Press-Telegram photographer confided.

"Well, let's get together on this," said a writer for a national news magazine. "Let's be consistent."

They say that the law is what the Supreme Court says it is. So the color of PJs is what the press says it is.

There was a vote. Oyez, oyez, oyez. (One reporter was heard to say, "Oh yeah.")

The news reports, including that in these newspapers, said light blue. I think it was a 5-4 decision, just like the Supreme Court.

But you've heard of dissenting opinions, I'm sure. Here's mine: They were white.

Retail clerks elect Edwards, Sperry

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

Kenneth Edwards and John C. Sperry, chief executive officers of the two largest Retail Clerks locals in Southern California, appear to be decisive winners in their locals' respective elections.

Although both men are incumbents, each won his first election to the presidency of his respective local — Edwards in Los Angeles clerks Local 770 and Sperry in Long Beach-Orange County Local 324.

With the count still incomplete Friday, Edwards, the acting head of Local 770, is running well ahead of his opponent, Lois McKinstry, the former executive vice president of the local. The unofficial tally give him 74 per cent of the vote.

In the Local 324 election, Sperry won an unofficial majority of the votes (2,635) in his race against business agent Robert Caligiuri (with 1,462) and member Walter Moran (244).

Walter Van Such, the incumbent secretary-treasurer of the local, won a plurality in his race against Bob Gable and Jack Maurer, but he'll face a runoff election Dec. 11 — as will a number of others running for several business agent and vice president positions of the local.

Edwards' apparent election in Los Angeles places him in firm command of a local whose affairs have been rent by controversy and dispute in recent years. Sixteen months ago, after the resignation of former 770 head Joe DeSilva, Edwards was appointed caretaker of the local by the union's international headquarters in Washington, D. C. His status as representative of the international, in fact, sparked a bitter election campaign, in which his opponent hammered away at the theme of international domination of the local.

McKinstry was part of a slate that included 770's former research director, Hugo Morris, also an apparent loser in the election. Morris and McKinstry were stripped of their powers several weeks ago for publicly charging Edwards and the international leadership of selling out the membership in the recently negotiated food industry contract in Southern California.

The local-international conflict surfaced to a much lesser extent in the 324 election. Caligiuri, in some of the campaign material, indicated his support of Morris and McKinstry, and it was apparent that the international favored him.

Sperry was appointed to the presidency of Local 324 several weeks after Arthur Berland retired as the local's chief executive last year. Berland was one of a number of Southern California clerks chieftains — including DeSilva — who were making $60,000 to $80,000 a year when they left office.

For 24 hours a day, fair weather and foul, in war and in peace, year after year for 60 years, armed sentries on a San Pedro hilltop have guarded a mysterious hidden military installation named Battery Osgood-Farley.

Even today, sentries are guarding the place, and at latest military report it seems likely the public won't get a glimpse of Battery Osgood-Farley for at least another six months.

To the civilian world around Fort MacArthur in San Pedro, the name of the old battery is unknown and its existence is only a rumor. Everyone knows the hill up there has secret tunnels "going everywhere."

Secret tunnels and all, under its five acres of innocent-looking grassy hill near Gaffey Street and 37th Street, Battery Osgood-Farley was nominated for a national honor a few days ago by Congressman Glenn Anderson, D-San Pedro.

The battery qualifies, under the Historic Preservation Act of 1966, Anderson announced, "as a typical example of early 20th Century fortification for coast and harbor defense."

If the nomination wins a place for the battery on the National Register of Historic Places, presumably the old battery will be safe from whatever domestic enemies it may have, including all the land-hungry agencies now clawing and clutching at federal land being released, or possibly soon to be released, from the Fort MacArthur reservations.

Capt. Mary L. Danahar, public information officer of Fort MacArthur, said there seems no likelihood of an immediate withdrawal of the sentries who bar public access to the fort's upper reservation, where Battery Osgood-Farley lies hidden in a massive concrete and steel bunker.

"The battery has been nominated only," Capt. Danahar said. "The nomination has yet to be acted on. I can't see any way that the public could get a look at the battery for at least the next six months."

Newsmen got a cautious walking tour through part of the subterranean works, escorted by Master Sgt. Raymond Banks of Capt. Danahar's staff.

"These concrete galleries," Sgt. Banks said, "would make a marvelous museum. This place has a heritage. In their day, the two 14-inch rifles which armed this battery, guarding the harbor and coast, were the biggest ordnance the Army had."

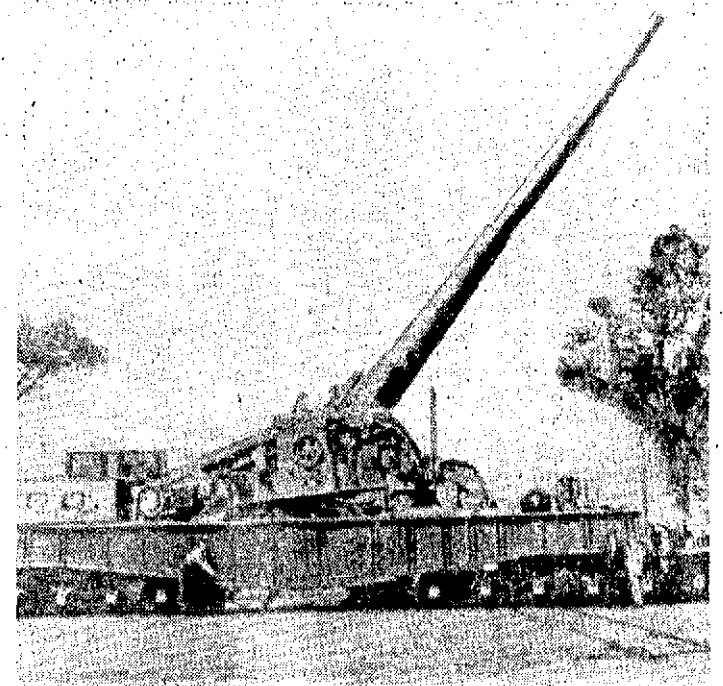

"And dug-in like this, just over the crown of the hill, this battery could not

IT NEVER FIRED a shot at an enemy, but this gun, one of the 14-inch rifles which armed Battery Osgood-Farley 60 years ago, was part of the biggest ordnance the United States had at the time. The barrel was 95 feet, four inches long. With a 450 pound charge of powder, it could fire a projectile weighing 1,400 to 1,600 pounds a distance of 25 miles.

have received a damaging hit from an attacking ship of that period."

The rifles were disappearing carriage rifles, each weighing 110,000 pounds.

"Each barrel was 95 feet and 4 inches long. With a 450-pound charge of powder, either of these rifles could fire a projectile weighing 1,400 to 1,600 pounds a distance of 25 miles."

Newer weapons, newer systems of attack and of defense, made the big guns obsolete, and they never fired a shot at an enemy. Under World War II pressures for modernization, the Army moved in smaller, portable rifles and anti-aircraft weapons.

Big guns from the fort's fixed defenses—mortars and huge rifles—were hauled out piecemeal in World War II years, cut up as scrap.

Every concussion from one of the big rifles broke windows, tumbled dishes and enraged housewives. The Army got the bills and paid them.

Battery Osgood-Farley, stripped of its main reason for existence, turned into a ghost-town of abandoned subterranean rooms, tunnels, stairways, magazines and ammo tracks, linked to concealed above-ground concrete-and-steel buildings, all lying nearly out of sight in a massive bunker.

Wind hooted in the echoing tunnels, and steel bars rusted on the doors and windows. To rebuild Battery Osgood-Farley into anything of military value now would cost a fortune; even digging it out would cost a fortune. So Battery Osgood-Farley has stood there, or lain there, a dead thing of concrete and steel, unseen by anyone except sentries and military police, for the past 30 years.

California-like policies said cutting U.S. welfare rolls

National welfare rolls have decreased for the first time in 20 years, and the drop can be directly attributed to the use of California-style policies in most states, U.S. Commissioner of Welfare Robert Carleson said Friday in Long Beach.

Speaking at the Edge-water Hyatt House before approximately 200 members of the American Society for Public Administration, Carleson said the national welfare cost rose only 7.2 per cent over the past year—a figure well below the rate of inflation.

Carleson, a Long Beach native who was graduated from USC in 1953 with a degree in government administration, was appointed U. S. commissioner on March 1, 1973.

Prior to that appointment he served for two years as director of the State Department of Social Welfare.

The welfare reforms he began in California are the same ones he has transformed into national policy, Carleson said.

He told his audience that California welfare rolls came under serious study in 1973, when officials determined the state was facing bankruptcy—partially the result of the swelling lists.

In 1970, Carleson said, 10 per cent of the Californians receiving welfare were "totally ineligible" and another 23 per cent were being overpaid as the result of "administrative errors."

Carleson credited the California Welfare Reform Act of 1971 with sparking a declining trend in the number of persons on welfare and cutting the costs of administering the program.

He said the dip was achieved by implementing what some officials called drastic administrative changes. Two of those included plugging loopholes and reducing errors. Cases were meticulously verified and closely monitored, the welfare commissioner said.

He said the changes resulted in taxpayers saving money and welfare payments being distributed to "people who really need help."

The welfare reforms could not be looked at as "a cutting and slashing program," Carleson added.

The welfare commissioner said the California program was largely adopted by the federal government in the Welfare Reform Act of 1973.

He added that what was accomplished in California in 1971 "is now being accomplished in the states that are participating in the national program."

Carleson said Michigan—which dropped 300,000 persons from its welfare rolls between March 1973 and March of this year—could be used an example of a state with a declining number of welfare recipients as the result of the federal program.

Success of the program relies on the federal government providing state and local governments with goals to achieve and then giving them funds to use in reaching the goals, Carleson said.

"I feel this is a good way to administer the federal program," he said, "and I feel that it is working where the states want it to work."

Carleson's speech was part of a conference on "Productivity in Local Government." The event was sponsored by the Long Beach State University Center for Public Policy and Administration and the Los Angeles Chapter of the Society for Public Administration.

'Time to deliver on promises,' Hannaford says

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Congressman-elect Mark W. Hannaford, D-Lakewood, 34th District, Friday predicted "a significant change in the status quo" of the new 94th Congress because "for the first time, a majority of that Congress has four years or less seniority."

There has been a change from the last three classes (since 1968) entering the Congress from "absolute safe incumbency positions," Hannaford told the Third Friday Forum at Lakewood Country Club. "Thus there will be large numbers of members who do not have a vested interest in the status quo."

At age 49, Hannaford said he is not one to regard seniority derisively but suggested a balance be struck between seniority and "ventilating (congressional) institutions," making possible an "upward mobility. I think you'll see a modified seniority system."

Hannaford, successor in the district to the 22-year Republican tenure of retiring Congressman Craig Hosmer, promised that he would be "a disciple of reform" in the Congress "and if I don't become one then I'm a traitor to what I've been saying all my life."

He said he expects "a substantial measure of moral renaissance" in the Congress, a work designed to regain the confidence of the people "and to move forward, Gerald Ford notwithstanding."

He reported that the election day turnout in the 34th District was the largest in California for any congressional district with a contested seat. He credited this to his own workers plus the "compatible" candidacies of other area victors, Assemblyman-elect Fred W. Chel, D-Long Beach, 58th District; Assemblyman-elect Frank Vicencia, D-Bellflower, 54th District, and incumbent Assemblyman Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, 57th District.

Hannaford expressed special gratitude to State Sen. Joseph M. Kennick, who was the Democratic nominee against Hosmer 22 years ago.

"No one remembers better than I," Kennick said, "when the district went Republican against my personal wishes."

The congressman-elect said he intends to establish a main office and a branch office in the district. He said he will become affiliated with the Democratic Study Group in Washington, a group whose caucus he plans to attend Nov. 30, and will be part of the National Committee for an Effective Congress.

He asserted that he will be the congressman for all of the 34th District, not just the congressman from Lakewood.

Despite Democrats' 291-144 margin, Hannaford said there may be votes on which Southern Democrats will vote with the Republican President. But those defections will not deter, in Hannaford's view, the march of this Congress toward "something different—tax reform, on economic stimulus for the housing industry, on cutting interest rates, on reaching perspective on defense spending in the amounts allocated and the manner of allocation, and on election reform."

Assemblyman-elect Vicencia acknowledged the party's cause for "tremendous joy over election results" but cautioned that "it is now time to get serious about the things we said" during the campaigns. "It is up to all of us to do our best to carry out those responsibilities."

Chel, on vacation after his victory in the 58th Assembly District, was represented by his wife, Elizabeth, who thanked the voters and the various party blocs represented at the forum.

Richard Cartwright relayed the gratitude of Congressman Glenn M. Anderson, D-Harbor City, 32nd District, reelected in a new district which includes about half of Long Beach.

Kapow! revue at

LBSU a winner

By DAVID LEVINSON

The university revue, an American art form that has been moribund since the Garriek Gaicities of 1926, suddenly snapped to life at Long Beach State Thursday night.

Boy Meets Girl, Kapow! is not the old song-and-dance routines of College Humor days. Kapow! is more dance-and-song routines. The fun is not in new songs but in tap dancing to old songs, and occasionally in the way the show twines old songs around each other — as when the girl whose heart belongs to Daddy meets someone who sets her back on her heels, Goody-goody!

The spoofs move easily from dying swans to fighting Marines to cops and robbers. There are a lot of sight gags, and there is a wonderful amount of nostalgia, but the show is more than vaudeville revisited. It is satire as well, and some exuberant intellectual clowning faintly reminiscent of modern dancer Twyla Tharp's Bix Pieces and Eight Jelly Rolls.

In the program, Betsy Hamilton of the Long Beach State faculty shares credit for the choreography with the choreographer of the show. The show has the joyful spirit of a collaborative effort, but there had to be a guiding genius or Kapow! would not be such consistent fun. The genius of Betsy Hamilton was to put unlikely things together and make an inexplicable but very funny sense of them.

She was aided by 17 long-limbed and flexible-faced student dancers and one faculty hooper, David MacArthur of the Department of Theatre Arts, as

Decision delayed on probation officer

Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisors spent more than three hours in executive session Friday to decide the fate of Chief Probation Officer Kenneth Kirkpatrick, only to announce they had taken the matter under submission and would make a final decision Tuesday.

Tight-lipped supervisors refused to disclose the content of the discussion but it was learned they decided to give Kirkpatrick a chance to accept a transfer in place of being fired.

Kirkpatrick, 59, who had been under fire for his handling of probation for hard-core juveniles and for shoddy conditions at Juvenile Hall, attended part of the morning session with his lawyer.

At about noon, Board Chairman Kenneth Hahn said there would be a firm decision at 3 p.m. when supervisors reconvened in executive session.

After about 20 minutes in the afternoon session Hahn said the matter had been held over until Tuesday so Kirkpatrick, at his request, could confer with his family about "the proposals that were made."

Sources indicated that the five supervisors apparently had come to a firm decision to fire Kirkpatrick in the morning, but that he had requested a chance to review an offer of a transfer "somewhere in the Chief Administrative Office."

About four months ago, supervisors held another executive session over Kirkpatrick and it was learned the same situation developed — either accept a transfer or be fired.

However, it was learned Friday that high county officials had bungled, neglecting to officially tell Kirkpatrick he could accept a transfer.

Should Kirkpatrick elect to refuse the transfer, sources said, he definitely would be fired Tuesday. A county employee for 34 years, Kirkpatrick has been head of the probation department since May 1968 and currently earns $37,500 a year.

In the event he is fired, officials said he would be entitled to pension benefits representing 75 percent of his current pay.

Stanton man re-appointed

Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Ronald B. Linsky of Stanton has been reappointed by Gov. Reagan to the California Regional Water Quality Control Board for the Santa Ana Region.

At the same time Elsie Kroesche of Costa Mesa was replaced on the board after her term expired. J. William Murphy of Chino succeeds her.

Linsky, 40, teaches at the Marine Sciences Floating Laboratory as part of the Office of Sea Government Project at UCLA. He has served on the board since 1971.

Kapow! revue at LBSU a winner

By DAVID LEVINSON

The university revue, an American art form that has been moribund since the Garrick Galettes of 1926, suddenly snapped to life at Long Beach State Thursday night.

Boy Meets Girl, Kapow! is not the old song-and-dance routines of College Humor days. Kapow! is more dance-and-song routines. The fun is not in new songs but in tap dancing to old songs, and occasionally in the way the show twines old songs around each other — as when the girl whose heart belongs to Daddy meets someone who sets her back on her heels, Goody-goody!

The spoofs move easily from dying swans to fighting Marines to cops and robbers. There are a lot of sight gags, and there is a wonderful amount of nostalgia, but the show is more than vaudeville revisited. It is satire as well, and some exuberant intellectual clowning faintly reminiscent of modern dancer Twyla Tharp's Bix Pieces and Eight Jelly Rolls.

In the program, Betsy Hamilton of the Long Beach State faculty shares credit for the choreography with the entire company. The show has the joyful spirit of a collaborative effort, but there had to be a guiding genius or Kapow! would not be such consistent fun. The genius of Betsy Hamilton was to put unlikely things together and make an inexplicable but very funny sense of them.

She was aided by 17 long-limbed and flexible-faced student dancers and one faculty hooper, David MacArthur of the Department of Theatre Arts, as

SEIZURE — A bizarre tale about a writer obsessed by three weird characters of his own creation — a "Queen of Evil," a dwarf and an executioner. (PG)

EARTHQUAKE — An earthquake devastates a great part of Los Angeles. With Charlton Heston, Ava Gardner, Lorene Green and Richard Roundtree. (PG)

GOLD — Melodramatic villainy at a South African gold mine and a harrowing rescue from a flooded shaft. With Roger Moore, Susannah York and Ray Milland. (PG)

DAY FOR NIGHT — Francois Truffaut's affectionate, fascinating and humorous film about the making of a movie. Oscar winner in 1973 as best foreign film. (PG)

2001: A SPACE ODYSSEY

well as by an accompaniment (featuring some fine ragtime, incidentally) recorded by a student band led by Professor John Prince.

This is one of those rare, delightful shows you want to see again. There may be no chance to see it at all after today. The closing performance of this run starts at 8:30 p.m. in the university's Little Theatre.

SOUTHLAND MOVIE GUIDE

SEY — The classic sci-fi film Oscar winner and ultimate trip. A cast which includes Keir Dullea and Gary Lockwood is almost outstaged by a computer named HAL. (G)

THE BEARS AND I — A young Vietnam veteran in the wilderness cares for three orphan bear cubs and fights for the dignity of the bear clan of Takiute Indians. With Patrick Wayne, Chief Dan George and Andrew Dugan. (G)

HARRY AND TONTO — Heartwarming, delightful sketch of life starring Art Carney in a masterful performance as a retired professor who lives with an unusual cat. (R)

THAT'S ENTERTAINMENT — A magnificent two-and-a-half hour extravaganza of highlights from MGM musicals. Stars include Fred Astaire, Gene Kelly, Judy Garland and Esther Williams. (G)

THE GROOVE TUBE — An unevenly funny and often crude satire on television. May offend some. (R)

CALIFORNIA SPLIT — Compulsive gamblers George Segal and Elliott Gould meet in a card parlor and embark on a gambling spree that ends in a Nevada Casino. (R)

Decision delayed on probation officer

Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisors spent more than three hours in executive session Friday to decide the fate of Chief Probation Officer Kenneth Kirkpatrick, only to announce they had taken the matter under submission and would make a final decision Tuesday.

Tight-lipped supervisors refused to disclose the content of the discussion but it was learned they decided to give Kirkpatrick a chance to accept a transfer in place of being fired.

Kirkpatrick, 59, who had been under fire for his handling of probation for hard-core juveniles and for shoddy conditions at Juvenile Hall, attended part of the morning session with his lawyer.

At about noon, Board Chairman Kenneth Hahn said there would be a firm decision at 3 p.m. when supervisors reconvened in executive session.

After about 20 minutes in the afternoon session Hahn said the matter had been held over until Tuesday so Kirkpatrick, at his request, could confer with his family about "the proposals that were made."

Sources indicated that the five supervisors apparently had come to a firm decision to fire Kirkpatrick in the morning, but that he had requested a chance to review an offer of a transfer "somewhere in the Chief Administrative Office."

About four months ago, supervisors held another executive session over Kirkpatrick and it was learned the same situation developed — either accept a transfer or be fired.

However, it was learned Friday that high county officials had bungled, neglecting to officially tell Kirkpatrick he could accept a transfer.

Should Kirkpatrick elect to refuse the transfer, sources said, he definitely would be fired Tuesday. A county employee for 34 years, Kirkpatrick has been head of the probation department since May 1968 and currently earns $37,500 a year.

In the event he is fired, officials said he would be entitled to pension benefits representing 75 per cent of his current pay.

Yosemite hearings postponed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Public hearings on the Yosemite National Park master plan proposal will be further delayed until next year because of an unspecified hangup in Washington, the National Park Service said Friday.

The hearings, at five locations around the state, are awaited by conservationists who fear the plans of the new Yosemite concessionaire, the Music Corp. of America, pose a threat to the serenity of America's first national park. MCA denies it.

The master plan will establish or reaffirm policy for the future of the renowned granite wonderland, most of whose man-made facilities MCA bought last year from the Yosemite Park and Curry Co.

MCA wants to intensify convention use of Yosemite and replace the $6.50-a-night tent cabins in the valley with multistory motel-type cabins that would rent for $18 or $19 a night.

JOHN DAVIS, acting director of the NPS western region, said the environmental-impact statement that goes with the master plan is being held up by the Department of Interior.

GOV-ELECT Edmund G. Brown Jr., left, consults with state Legislative Analyst Alan A. Post Saturday to determine whether he or Gov. Reagan will submit next state budget.

Brown gives '75-'76 budget, appointments top priority

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov.-elect Edmund G. Brown Jr. Friday sought the advice of top state fiscal experts to decide whether he or retiring Gov. Reagan will submit the next state budget to the Legislature.

Brown met with Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post and his aides to discuss details concerning the budget, which will be submitted to state lawmakers next year.

He also said he planned to meet soon with Verne Orr, director of the Reagan administration's Finance Department, to help him decide whether to take immediate control of the budget process or turn over the task to Reagan.

If Reagan submits the budget, Orr said it would be "fairly rigorous" with no program increases. Any increases desired by Brown would have to be made later through the Legislature, vividly portraying the differing fiscal approaches between himself and Reagan.

He also said he planned to meet soon with Verne Orr, director of the Reagan administration's Finance Department, to help him decide whether to take immediate control of the budget process or turn over the task to Reagan.

If Reagan submits the budget, Orr said it would be "fairly rigorous" with no program increases. Any increases desired by Brown would have to be made later through the Legislature, vividly portraying the differing fiscal approaches between himself and Reagan.

"It will not be part of each," Orr said, meaning it will consist entirely of proposals by either man.

"First is the budget," Brown said of his preparations to assume office. "Next is the appointments committee and along with that the development of an orderly transition process."

"Until I've had a chance to go over the fiscal situation with them it would be premature to discuss," he said during a tour of Capitol press corps offices before the meeting with Post.

"The economy is uncertain and what the prospects are I'm working on right now," he said in an interview. "The budget has a high priority."

Orr said Brown will have to reply to the request for a decision "within the next few days" or state budget writers would go ahead with the Reagan proposal.

In that connection, Brown also said he had met with Democratic legislative leaders to discuss bills to be proposed during the 1975-'76 session.

He said he intended to work closely with Assembly Speaker Leo T. McCarthy, D-San Francisco, and Senate President (pro tem) James R. Mills, D-San Diego, on a regular basis "between now and the end of the year."

In the final days of the last session the Legislature passed a series of appropriations measures to funnel about $400 million into state programs. Reagan promptly vetoed all of the bills.

Asked if he would sign the measures if reintroduced and passed by the lawmakers, Brown said: "I don't want to comment about a bill before it's on my desk, let alone before I'm inaugurated."

Brown also said he had a "very amicable meeting" with Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger earlier in the day to discuss the transition into office. He said he expected "full cooperation" from Younger, the only Republican constitutional officer, during his term as governor.

Brown likely won't attend Demo parlay

Associated Press

California Democrats will send 181 delegates to the party's first national charter convention, but Governor-elect Edmund Brown will probably not be one of them.

Today, the executive committee of the State Democratic Central Committee will finish filling out the delegation, which will be the largest one at the historic December meeting in Kansas City, Mo.

"The executive committee will be picking Democrats with statewide constituencies to fill the 31 at-large slots," said party spokesman John Flink. "I think their main concern is to pick people who come from statewide leadership positions. The logical choices will be Jerry Brown and the statewide officers."

But Dave Jensen, interim press secretary for Brown, said that the burdens of putting together the new administration will keep Brown from attending the convention.

"At this point, we have to deal with the budget and other matters," said Jensen. "The whole process is almost overwhelming."

"It's extremely unlikely that he (Brown) will be there," he added. "He will probably send a representative."

The 31 delegates picked by the executive committee will join the 125 elected at 43 congressional caucuses last weekend and the 26 Democratic members of the California congressional delegation. Another 31 party faithful will be chosen by the committee as alternates.

Flink said the committee will probably only try to "balance" the delegation in relation to the number of women.

"In terms of consciously balancing the delegation, the only that will be considered is in relation to women and minorities," he said. "We're about eight per cent short on women."

He said there will probably not be an effort to increase the representation of the old line elements in the party as opposed to the so-called "new politics" delegates.

The "new politics" delegates — who generally favor guaranteed representation for minorities and women — took about 66 seats of the seats filled last weekend, Flink said.

Briefly...

Mr. Anglican quits; Lausanne a trap?

A familiar figure in the religious world stepped down yesterday, the day after he turned 70. The Most Rev. Dr. Michael Ramsey, 100th Archbishop of Canterbury, has been the spiritual leader of the worldwide Anglican church of 45 million members, including the U.S. Episcopal Church.

Ramsey is thought of as a "modernizer." He persuaded his brother bishops to discard their Victorian gaiters, setting the example himself. He also shook up some of their ideas, mainly with his thrust toward the concept of Christian reunion.

Under him, form of worship was revised, church government was modernized and laymen were encouraged to say what they thought about their church. He has been credited with helping his church weather the inner problem caused by radical theologians questioning the very basics of God. Not being an old-fashioned standpatter, he was in a good position to fight the radicals successfully.

A deep thinker about the human condition, he told a conference of bishops and clergy in New York in 1972: "I hope I am speaking as a disturbed man to disturbed men."

To young Britishers about to be ordained, he said: "Be concerned about the tremendous issues of the world we live in—poverty, affluence, pollution, race, war, violence, revolution. It is not that you will know the solution of these matters... it is rather that by your concern you will be sensitive to God's concern."

Church administration always bored this churchman. "The church is an institution which exists to serve God," he said. "Its first concern should be to serve God and not concern with itself."

Pastors and lay leaders wrestling with the necessary problems of church administration may well snort at a leader above the problems who is bored with administration. Yet the reminder of why the institution exists in the first place needs to be stated once in a while.

MORRIS CERULLO, San Diego-based evangelist who has held successful mass crusades in many lands, in a Los Angeles press conference this week announced a nationwide counseling service by telephone, with a toll free number.

Cerullo said he was not impressed by prevailing pessimism about this country, and saw it heading for a solution of problems and a more influential position in the world. "Healing is coming to our nation," he said, not through legislation but through "national renewal and revival."

THE INTERNATIONAL Congress on World Evangelism in Lausanne this summer, led by Billy Graham and including all strata of American evangelical Protestantism, was not pure enough in doctrine for the American Council of Christian Churches, founded originally by Carl McIntire.

Meeting in Tacoma, Wash., the Council denounced the Lausanne meeting, and said it "urges God's people to be not deceived by religious leaders who use evangelism to promote an un-Biblical fellowship with those who preach a false gospel."

DID YOU HEAR about the Watchtower evangelist on Pine Avenue who handed some literature to a sailor, then mistaking the sailor's courtesy for deep interest, asked the polite youngster "Would you like to be a Jehovah's Witness?" Replied the sailor hastily: "Lady, I didn't even see the accident!"

SPEAKING TO the executive council of the United Church of Christ, Dr. Robert Moss, president of the denomination, said most major Protestant denominations have experienced a membership decline in the past decade.

He saw this as due to "a reaction to the return to religion following World War II. Then, joining the church was the socially accepted thing to do. Now, persons who join the church come with very high motivation, because social pressures to do so are no longer operating."

Leader here

Bishop Frederick Douglas Jordan, former leader of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, now chairman for urban affairs and ecumenical relationships, will speak Sunday, 11 a.m. at the annual homecoming celebration of Grant Chapel AME Church, 1129 Alamosa Ave., with dinner served for all after the service. Bishop Jordan is also chairman of the Consultation on Church Union involving 10 major Protestant denominations. The public is invited to share the occasion by Pastor J. Curtis Foster.

Brotherhood works at Golgatha-Trinity Tale of two churches in 'changing' L.B. area

By LES RODNEY
Religion Editor

There was this 50-year-old Trinity Baptist Church at 14th and Gaviota, a dying white church in a changing neighborhood. So what else is new?

A mile and a half away, at California and Ninth, Golgatha Baptist, a 15-year-old black church, needed a larger home.

Golgatha looked into the possibility of acquiring the Trinity property, which had been deeded over to the American Baptist Convention by the tiny congregation.

And a strange thing happened. Golgatha, 330 members strong, moved over to Trinity all right. But Trinity stayed on. Result: Golgatha-Trinity Baptist Church, with a black pastor and white associate pastor. It's four months old and doing all right.

"IN FACT, we've gained 24 members since the merger in July," said Rev. Handy T. Vining, the pastor, in a chat this week. "We're having real fine services. Come on over one Sunday morning."

This is not a blockbuster integration story. Numerically, it is one-sided, reflecting the reality of the two congregations and of the church neighborhood, which is now mostly black. Yet the fact remains that the handful of Trinity loyalists and the minister did not "run away," but stayed. Dying Trinity took its place with its Christian neighbors of darker skins, and was born again.

The dozen Trinityites are not "token whites" in Golgatha-Trinity Church.

"Our white deacons on the board are strong and valuable people," said Vining. "We merged the two boards and got strong people from each one. We are very much working together."

A picture of the church choir on the pastor's desk shows three white faces.

The former Trinity minister, 26-year-old Rev. Joseph Champion (Champ) Singleterry, is a key figure in this unusual church story. He related well to the Trinity congregation members, and he relates well to the Golgatha people.

Born in Long Beach and raised in Wilmington, where he attended Banning High, "Champ" went on to Long Beach State and American Baptist Seminary of the West, and in 1972 came to Trinity. There he worked with Rev. Ron Bertsch, who had been sent in to try to develop a community center at the church facility, an attempt to connect the church to the world around it.

A year ago, when Bertsch left, Singleterry was called as pastor of tiny but stubbornly surviving congregation, and director of the center.

THE MERGER was a logical sequence for Singleterry.

"The very same day I came to the church," he recalls, "a black family fell led to Trinity. They came on Wednesday night to the prayer meeting, they assumed it was a black church in this neighborhood. They were startled when they came in. I of course invited them to please stay. I visited them on Friday, and they came to church Sunday and joined."

(This was quite a different reception from the one encountered by Rev. and Mrs. Vining when they were new in Long Beach and went to a white church—charitably unnamed by Vining, who assumes it has changed by now. It was a Sunday night and they wanted to hear a speaker they had read about in this newspaper. "As we stepped through the door," relates Vining, "the usher asked me what I wanted. I told him we didn't want anything, we just came to church. There was this uncomfortable tension. I was tempted to ask them what kind of God they were serving—white, black, purple, blue—just how did they look at God?")

In the merged church, Singleterry handles the educational program, does some preaching, and also continues his work with the community center.

How is it all working out in practice?

Says Singleterry: "It's the most exciting church I've ever been in. There is a tremendous feeling of love. What gives it a special quality is that people all feel they are doing something unique. The old pattern has been black church buys white church, end of white church. Here we merged, no matter how small our numbers. We Trinity people feel like Trinity isn't dead. And the Golgatha people have become impressed by the Trinity tradition."

SAYS VINING: "That's what everyone asks me, how do your people take to it? The answer is, very good. I don't think you can find any merged church anywhere where people have gotten along as well as these two."

"This will open some eyes. We have some different ways, but we can't see any real difference as Christians. People here all enjoy the Lord together."

Giving has gone up, and Singleterry suggested "I learned in seminary that this is one sign of approval of what you are doing."

The young white minister has become appreciative of the fact that there are differences in worship style between blacks and whites, and that there is no special merit in the word "integration" if it is used to mean the ending of meaningful traditions.

Black worship style, he believes, has something to offer the white church: "In enthusiasm, spirit, more dialogue with the pastor...and the celebrative aspects, some of which is happening in some white churches." And, he adds, white church traditions have something to offer black churches, including perhaps Christian educational programs, in which he reports an "upsurge of interest."

HAS SINGLETERRY encountered any hostility as a white from those blacks who lean to nationalistic separatism?

"Well, there's always a few young people in the community who never accepted our efforts," he replied. "Golgatha has accepted me, and all of the Trinity people, fantastically. They see I have something to offer, and they trust me."

He smiled. "I don't try to be black, to dress any certain way, or talk like them. They appreciate that!"

He talked about the evolution of his own thinking, and how he sees his role.

"In the '60s when I was in college I was strong for the civil right movement. Now I am convinced that racism is a sin. My call is still working to bring about racial brotherhood, but within the structure of the church. I'm a very institutional person, I am all for the institutional church. Some day I may through these experiences be able to help other churches in changing areas. It's conceivable to me that I could one day be called as pastor of a black church."

Singleterry wanted very much to stress that in the new merged church situation, the community center dream had not died. On the contrary.

"Actually the merger has given the center a much better chance, better rapport with the immediate community, and Golgatha has brought in strong male black leadership, so important with young people. We're working on programs, I'm writing a proposal for day care here, an orientation toward a family service center to include counseling, recreation, educational opportunities. There are many single mothers, both black and white, who need this kind of help very much."

Pastor Vining nodded his hearty agreement.

IN THE MERGER, Trinity's non-viable remnant obviously wasn't "giving up" anything. How about Golgatha, the stronger partner in the pioneering move?

"We had 15 years at Golgatha before moving here," Vining said, "but we didn't feel we were giving anything up, or changing over, just that we were going to be together with some brothers as we continued in a more suitable church building. We were satisfied we were doing the right thing as a body in Christ."

He paused, concerned not to give too rosy a picture of the general situation. "Let's face it, we don't have the rich types you may find in the big white churches. Just typical hard working people. Good people, with many talents for the Lord. And you will find that blacks give as well, according to their income."

Above all, Vining believes that what happened between Golgatha and Trinity has something to say to the world.

"In some ways I think this can stand as a model, saying we can work together as Christians. If we can't serve God together now in one body, what about the hereafter? We're all one, as the song says."

And that seems to sum up the moral of this little Long Beach happening. Christian brotherhood works when the people involved are real Christians.

There it is in black and white on the corner of 14th and Gaviota.

CHRISTIANS HIT ARAFAT

A group of 25 Christian specialists on Jewish-Christian relations in a full page ad in the New York Times addressed to Yasir Arafat opposed his appearance at the U.N. this week, "because you speak only for a group publicly committed to the murder of innocents."

"Your organization is not only a menace to Israel—a U.N. member which you have pledged to destroy in one manner or another—it is a menace to all humanity," said the signers, who included Rev. Dr. William Weller, head of a National Council of Churches office on Jewish-Christian relations, and Rev. Edward Flannery, head of a similar Roman Catholic office.

The leaders added that they recognized "the legitimate aspirations of the Palestinian people," and said Arafat's organization did not include "millions of peace-loving Arabs and Palestinians, for whom you do not speak."

Among the signers was the widow of Reinhold Niebuhr, long considered a foremost American theologian.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

Reaction to 'terminal' verdict

Orville Kelly and his wife, Wanda, were on the way home from the hospital. Silent and stricken they rode through the incredible beauty of the autumn afternoon. Cancer was the verdict he had just received, terminal cancer!

Shocked and dazed, they could only stare ahead unseeing down the long road, touching hands now and then for comfort. "We must not tell the children or anyone," Orville said gently. "Let's keep it to ourselves as long as possible," they sobbed together.

Terminal! The stark finality of the word shattered their lives. Then a thought came to Kelly, a deep and profound thought. Terminal? Why, we are all terminal. It is just a matter of time for every human being on earth. Here am I at age 42 told that my life will probably end soon. The exact time when is just a bit more definite in my case. But as the Bible tells us, no one knows the day or the hour. Some will live up into the 80's, even into the 90's, but for every person now alive there is a terminal hour out there ahead. Such is the simple truth of human existence.

SO, SINCE HE is terminal, Orville went on to reason that the best solution for his situation was to live at its best whatever life he had left. Every day given him was a precious time slot in itself. He would enjoy the companionship of loved ones, revel in the beauty of the earth, have the pleasure of doing his daily work.

Orville then suggested to his wife that they go home and invite all their friends to a barbecue. "Let's come clean with everybody," he said. "We will just act normal about this and think of it as an incident in life. I'm going to try to be a happy terminal person along with all the others who also are terminal but just haven't been told when."

His honest action normalized the situation, relieved everyone of embarassment and sent a wave of inspiration through the community. And this spirit and thought have now spread throughout the nation.

Orville Kelly has brought hope and courage, together with sound and realistic thinking to hundreds facing his problem. And in an act of creativity, he has given a new slant on life's problems generally to non-cancer terminal persons everywhere.

Kelly's experience demonstrates the good values inherent in tragic situations and the human well being that can result. He got a sudden inspiration that caught on dramatically everywhere, one that has given hope and courage new life to cancer patients and those who do not suffer from this disease.

He started the M.T.C. Club, a loosely organized movement that has sprung up under his leadership in scores of communities. All who want to "Make Today Count" may be included in the M.T.C. Clubs. Kelly sends out inspirational bulletins and goes on speaking tours advocating in his simple, sincere and persuasive manner this basic fact about living; one can indeed make each day count and enhance the joy and meaning of life. For life, any way you take it, is short and ephemeral. He turned a grim sentence of death into a victorious new experience of life in depth. And hundreds who have not had their terminality underscored have, through the M.T.C. philosophy, taken a new lease on life.

As one grows older, the days seem to be shorter, but by the practice of Kelly — inspired philosophy they grow sweeter. It is indeed a great technique to live by. Through M.T.C. new blessings come every day all the way.

If in doubt as to what we print and do not print on the religion pages, give us a ring and we will tell you.

"TITHING IS THE BIBLICAL WORD FOR TEN PER CENT. WHAT IS THE WORD FOR FIFTEEN PER CENT?"

COCU asks full rights to all

Nine U.S. Protestant denominations in the Consultation on Church Union were asked this week to pledge themselves to work toward removal of any restrictions to the "receiving into full membership" baptized members of any of the other participating churches.

At the 12th COCU plenary in Cincinnati, delegates adopted "An Affirmation Toward the Mutual Recognition of Members," which calls on all to "affirm that membership in a particular church is full participation in the whole people of God."

Rev. Edward Smith, pastor of Artesia-Cerritos United Methodist Church, has been elected president of the newly organized Artesia-Cerritos Ministerial Assn. Rev. Edward Fikse of Zion Reformed is vice president and Rv. Drury Parks of Artesia Christian is secretary-treasurer.

Wiggins seeks top post in GOP conference

Leadership battles shaping up in House

By GIL BAILEY
Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Major leadership fights are developing in the House among both Republican and Democratic delegations, with the top leadership being challenged in both parties.

Rep. Charles Wiggins, R-Fullerton, Calif., who gained national fame during the House Judiciary Committee impeachment inquiry, said Friday he intends to challenge Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., for chairmanship of the House Republican Conference.

At the same time, Reps. Phillip Burton, D-Calif., Thomas Foley, D-Wash., and B. F. Sisk, D-Calif., are all running for the chairmanship of the House Democratic Caucus.

In addition, leadership challenges have been issued against Minority Leader Rep. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., although President Ford has personally endorsed him for the post. The challenge was issued by Rep. Peter Peyser, R-N.Y.

Several Republican members of the Illinois delegation are potential candidates for minority whip, a post that becomes vacant with the retirement of Rep. Leslie Arends, also from Illinois.

The two major battles will be for the chairmanships of the Democratic Caucus and Republican Conference.

"It will be a close race, but I think I can win," Wiggins said Friday of the GOP Conference election. While he denied any ideological motives in his challenge against Anderson, Wiggins is more conservative than Anderson.

Wiggins acted as former President Richard

M. Nixon's most effective defender on the Judiciary Committee until presented with overwhelming evidence of Nixon's role in the Watergate cover-up. Wiggins' call for Nixon's resignation led to a Republican turnaround concerning the former president.

Wiggins is also a possible candidate against Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., in the 1976 election. The chairmanship would give Wiggins further national exposure.

"I am seeking to expand the leadership and to strengthen it," he said. "I have and will be supportive of all Republicans and will reflect their consensus views in leadership activities."

On the Democratic side, Burton and Foley will wage a struggle between liberals in their efforts to gain the chairmanship of the Democratic Caucus.

Burton is a former chairman of the generally liberal Democratic Study Group, while Foley is the current chairman. Foley's candidacy is, in some respects, a direct challenge to Burton, who some members fear because of his activism and his sometimes abrasive manner. "We want a liberal, but we don't want somebody who will scare everybody to death," said one Foley supporter.

Sisk, on the other hand, is the candidate of more conservative and traditional Democrats, who don't want to see the caucus take on the seniority system.

3 top White House lobbyists on way out

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — President Ford, faced with a Congress heavily dominated by the opposition party, will make major changes in the staff on which he relies for politically sensitive relations with senators and representatives.

The planned shifts, expected before the new 94th Congress convenes in January, will include the departure of at least three of the top White House lobbyists whom Ford inherited from former President Richard M. Nixon.

AMONG those who will be leaving, according to White House sources, are William E. Timmons, chief of the congressional liaison team, and two of his assistants, Tom C. Korologos and W. Eugene Ainsworth.

The three men, according to these sources, plan to establish a public relations firm in Washington.

Max L. Friedersdorf, a fourth member of the liaison staff, may succeed

Timmons as chief White House lobbyist.

Timmons, in a statement Thursday, did not confirm his plans to leave the White House, but did concede that he had discussed the matter with the President.

"I have no definite plans at the moment," he said. "I had hoped that I could finish 22 years of government service at the conclusion of the lame-duck session. However, I have submitted no resignation but I have discussed it generally with the President."

The expiring Congress will reconvene Monday for a post-election session. The new 94th Congress will convene in January, but a definite date has not yet been set.

Congressional sources said Friday that Ford had expressed interest in naming one or more Democrats to his congressional liaison staff to provide a more effective link with the Democrats who control both Houses of Congress.

Little chance seen for oil profits tax passage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional tax writers are getting ready for a last-ditch attempt to enact a tax on windfall oil profits and other revenue code revisions this year, but the odds appear long against it.

The House Ways and Means Committee scheduled a meeting Monday—the day Congress reconvenes from its election recess—to try to agree on a streamlined tax bill.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said Tuesday in Little Rock that Congress should not wait until next year to impose an 85 per cent tax on oil company windfall profits not reinvested for increased production, and to begin phasing out the oil depletion allowance.

In addition to these provisions, the committee, where all tax legislation originates, is expected to consider proposals:

—To increase the minimum tax paid by wealthy persons with large sheltered incomes.

—To provide tax relief for low-income persons by boosting their special deduction.

—And possibly to grant tax exemption to interest earned by savings accounts as a way to encourage formation of capital to finance home mortgages.

'No matter how you cut it...' High school averages slip

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California student test scores had some good news and some bad news Friday for the state Board of Education.

The state's second and third graders scored above the national averages on this year's tests, said Dr. William Law, chief of program evaluation and development for the state Department of Education.

"That is the good news," he told the board. "Now I think we come to the start of the bad news."

Law then told the board that California's high school seniors are dropping farther and farther below the national averages in writing and language skills. The sixth grade test results show a similar trend, he said.

"No matter how you cut it, the test results at the 12th grade level are less than we would like them to be," said state schools chief Wilson Riles.

The high school class that graduated earlier this year was 16 points below the national average on the writing test, Law said. It was the fifth straight year of a drop in the national rank of the state's seniors.

He added that the results are similar to the finding at UC Berkeley that 45 per cent of the freshman class needed a remedial course of "bone-head English."

"This is remarkably consistent with what we are seeing with this test," he told the board of the testing of about 250,000 seniors.

"We are responsible and feel very badly when the results come out like this," said board member Viria R. Krotz of Orinda.

The test reports showed sixth graders trailing 13 points behind the national average in writing. They also scored 12 points below national norms in math, eight in spelling and six in reading.

But second grade students scored three points above the national average in reading skills and third graders tallied two points above the norm.

"I think that is a very rosy picture," Law said.

The board also asked department staff to draw up legislation to be submitted to the new Legislature to implement the controversial school financing plan approved by the board Thursday.

The plan, a response to the landmark Serrano vs. Priest court decision, calls for a statewide property tax and an additional $1.4 billion in new state money over the next five years.

The Serrano ruling is now being appealed by the state.

Much of the final day of this two-day board meeting was taken up by a discussion of the test results and whether the tests reflected an accurate image of students' achievement.

"There is something systematic occurring here," Law said. "A lot of people think style is important — and that's what we are measuring."

Board President Newton L. Stewart of Eureka asked if the tests checked the students' progress in what they were actually being taught.

"Again, I wonder if we have a comparison of apples and oranges here," Stewart said.

Law replied that methods of testing sixth and 12th graders will have been changed by the time next year's classes are tested.

Eugene Ragle, a Roseville board member, asked if the poor results were caused by allowing students too much freedom in choosing their courses.

He said it would be a "disaster to suppose that a youngster at elementary or even secondary age has the knowledge and experience to select wisely."

But Riles said individualized instruction is designed to help the student's particular needs, not a "do your own thing" approach.

It is too early to say whether Riles' Early Childhood Education program aimed at those same grades was responsible for the improved test scores, Law added.

'Godfather' record predicted

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

A few months ago NBC-TV made the producers of "The Godfather" an offer they couldn't refuse.

It amounted, we are told, to $10 million for a single airing on television of the all-time motion picture box office champion. The price is a record, but, then, "The Godfather" is no ordinary movie. NBC executives feel sure it will draw the largest television audience in history.

Until now, the three most successful movies on television have all aired on ABC. They are, in order: "Airport," which was shown last November; "Love Story," which was telecast in 1972, and "The Poseidon Adventure," which aired just recently.

"The Godfather" is more controversial than any of the other hit movies to be brought to television in that it is filled with violence.

It will be shown in two parts—tonight and Monday night—from 9 to 11 each evening on Channel 4.

"THE GODFATHER," produced by Paramount Pictures, was shown in the motion picture theaters as an R-rated film. And now it enters the home with less than one minute of its 175-minute footage edited out.

It's the drama of a family involved in a bloody struggle for power among organized-crime factions, and the R rating came more from its scenes of blood and gore than from sex. However, left intact is the James Caan sex scene that some viewers would find objectionable.

Unquestionably, "The Godfather" is a movie that holds the interest of nearly all who see it. It's not a film that appeals only to highbrows or only to lowbrows. It won the Oscar as best picture of 1972, and it has a great cast headed by Marlon Brando, Al Pacino, Robert Duvall and Caan.

It's up to you whether you choose to tune it in—and whether you choose to let your youngsters see it.

THE NETWORK is attempting to warn viewers what to expect. Francis Ford Coppola, director and co-author of the screenplay of "The Godfather" with Mario Puzo, will appear in a specially prepared opening message at the beginning of tonight's telecast.

He says, in part: "The story is about violent men and so the film in places is violent. I tempered each of these scenes through editing for television, but still I would caution you to use discretion in deciding who in your family should be permitted to see 'The Godfather.'"

NBC also will present the following advisory message once during tonight's telecast, as well as at the beginning of Monday night's telecast and preceding the second act of Monday's telecast: "The Godfather," one of the most widely seen motion pictures of our time, deals with a small group of criminals who live by violence. They are not representative of any ethnic group in American society, and the film does not present them as such. The fact is that these people had their origins in a nation that has made countless contributions to the world's culture and progress.

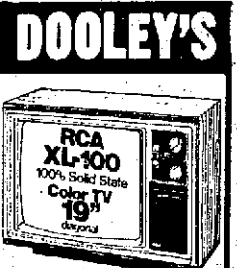

"Although it is fiction, the film is an honest and realistic depiction of how these people operate, and of the self-destructive effects of violence. For that reason we suggest you consider whether it should be viewed by any members of your family who might be disturbed by it."

MORE DISTURBING to some viewers than the scenes of violence will be the presentation of these evil men in a sympathetic light. Like Bonnie and Clyde and the killers in many another movie, the Corleones come across as likable people. They may be involved in all of the worst crimes known to man, but you'll have a heck of a time not liking them—and not wanting them to wreak violence on their enemies. Is this the way the most evil persons in our society should be portrayed? I don't think so. But I've got to admit I enjoyed the movie.

49ers oppose W. Michigan 'stunt men'

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

Each week, after breaking down films of opponents, Long Beach State coach Wayne Howard credits responsibility for success to a unit of his team.

If the 49ers topple Western Michigan tonight at Veterans Stadium, Howard believes that his offensive line will deserve much of the credit.

"Western Michigan is a good defensive team," Howard says of LBSU's 7:30 opponent. "Its strength is its defense. It stunts more than any team we've played this year. In fact, it may stunt more than anyone any of my teams have faced."

Using comparable tactics in 1971, the Broncos held former 49er all-America Terry Metcalf to 63 yards in 28 carries. In 1973 they limited Tommy Nathan, LBSU's current fullback, to 60 yards in 22 rushes. WMU won both games, 28-20, and 13-8, limiting LBSU to a safety and two field goals last year.

"They stunt on every play," says Tom Vincent, one of the 49er linemen who will have to cope with the Broncos' defensive forward wall.

"They stunt on every play and they never run the same stunt," continues Vincent. "There doesn't seem to be any pattern to what they do."

That could prove unfortunate for the Broncos — or for the 49ers.

"If we pick up the stunt and block it correctly, our gains could be enormous," says Vincent, a senior police science major. "But if we don't get it right, our backs could get killed."

A year ago Vincent wasn't thinking about stunts any more involved than stuffing gum in parking meter slots.

He had walked away from college football after playing for Howard at Gavilan College and a short stint at Weber State.

He was a parking control officer in Turlock when he decided he'd like one more try at football.

"I talked to coach (Ron) McBride, and he told me, 'You're going to Long Beach.' He was right."

Vincent hadn't followed Howard and his staff to UC Riverside because UCR did not have a police science major. Long Beach State does, and Vincent may be able to trade his helmet for a badge almost immediately.

"I took my oral exam for the L.A. police department the other day," says Vincent, "so all I have left is the physical and an agility test."

The agility test could be just that for Vincent, who carries 240 pounds when he plays football.

"I would like to weight about 215," says Vincent,

"but I can't afford that during football season."

The former Los Banos resident has carried a lot of weight for the 49ers.

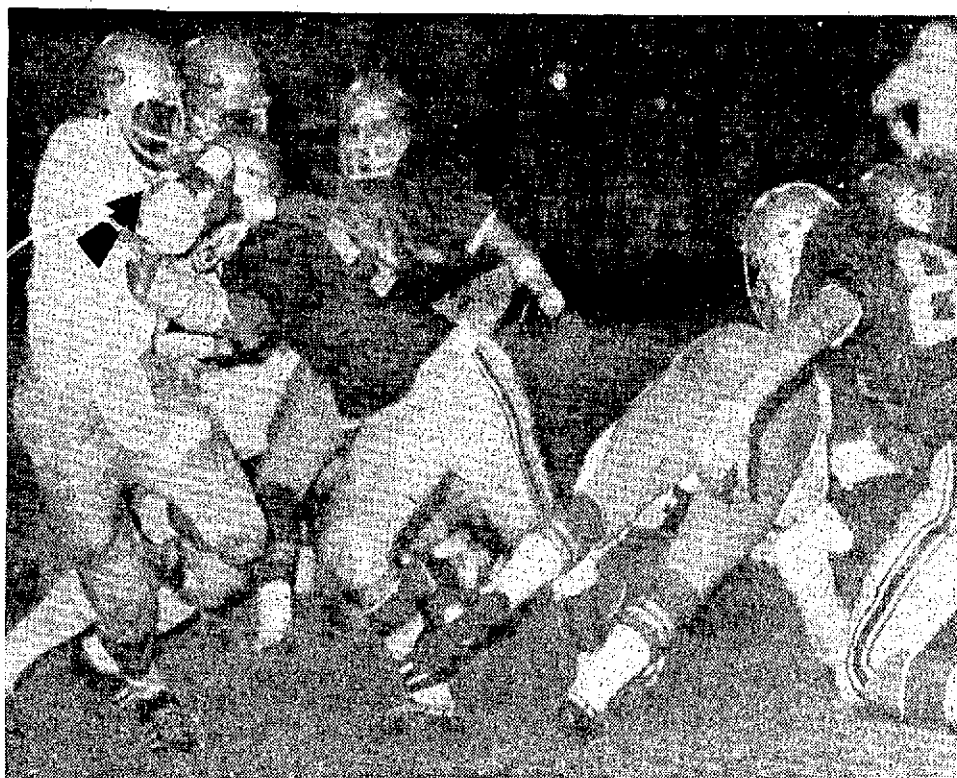

Last week against Fresno State, Vincent graded out to a plus-45, highest score of the season. His reward was a battered hand, which will bother him the rest of the season.

Vincent would like a comparable score against the Broncos.

Big plays pay off for Poly staff have seen the Jack-rabbits come up with a big bonus for the school in the form a CIF playoff berth.

That came about in rousing fashion Friday night as the Hares routed host Millikan, 41-7, to clinch second place in the Moore League.

Poly, now 6-3 over-all, rolled up 200 yards rushing and 211 passing to overwhelm a Millikan team that was playing without multi-talented quarterback Bob Boatright.

would have needed a near-perfect effort to contain the explosive Jack-rabbits.

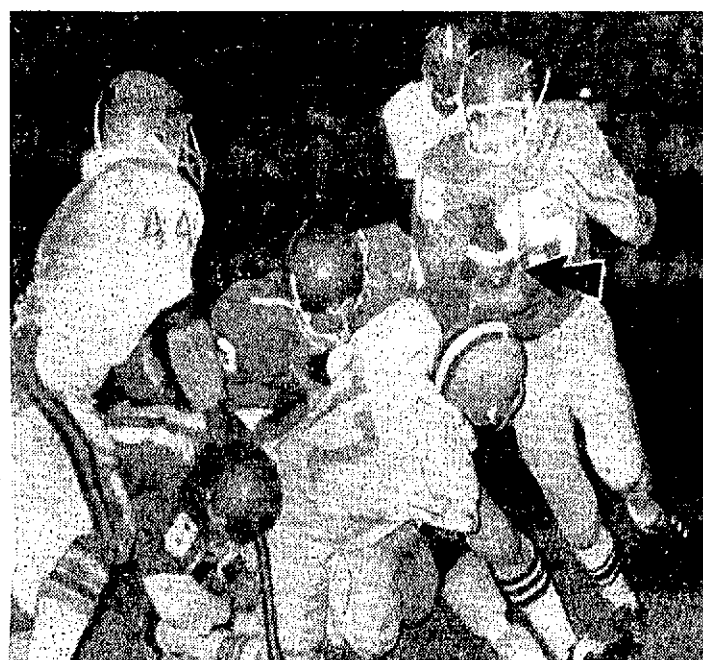

The concern Millikan coach Dick DeHaven expressed earlier in the week about containing Poly's receivers was borne out.

Poly had three different players — flanker Tony Hartley and quarterbacks Greg Hopkins and Michael Washington — throw touchdown passes as five of its six TDs came on plays covering more than 33 yards.

The Hares passed only four times in the second half, but two of the three completions went for scores.

Renne Reynolds scored twice on pass plays covering 57 and 36 yards, Hartley hauled in a 33-yard TD pass from Washington.

CANCEL THE PLAYOFFS, SUN'S MORRISON URGES

The World Football League playoffs should be canceled because they are certain to lose money, Sun general manager Curly Morrison said Friday.

"I would really like to see us cancel the playoffs," said Morrison, "and acclaim the Memphis Southmen, who have the best record, champions."

"I think it's ridiculous to continue when we know the playoffs are going to lose us money."

The Sun, Memphis and six other teams are to play in the two-bracket inaugural WFL playoffs, beginning Wednesday. Central Division champion Memphis is the league's top team with a 17-3 record. The Sun won the Western Division title with a 13-7 record.

The finalists include the three division champs and five wild card teams.

"The players are going to get less than a game salary," Morrison said. "I think it's ridiculous for the players to risk injuries for a couple hundred bucks. I don't think they're going to be too happy."

"All the teams are going to lose money except maybe for the two that are going to be involved in the World Bowl and they'll be just about breaking even."

Morrison said with 20,000 season ticket holders, the Sun has sold only 8,000 seats for its opening playoff game at Anaheim Stadium Thursday against Hawaii.

The Sun official said he has gotten agreement in talking to other WFL owners and general managers about the prospect of canceling the playoffs but declined to name them.

"The only other alternative is to have the playoffs with only the three divisional champions and the team with the best wild card record," he said. "That was the original plan for the playoffs."

"It's watering it down with eight teams involved."

In Memphis, John Bassett, owner of the Southmen and chairman of the league's executive committee, said he was "in complete disagreement" with Morrison on the issue.

"I have a great deal of respect for Mr. Morrison but I categorically disagree with his idea concerning the playoffs," Bassett said.

Increasing costs driving all but supers out of football: Horn

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Stephen Horn, president of Long Beach State, says he's only half-kidding when he predicts that "only four college football teams will be left by the 1980s."

The rest will have been driven out of the game because of increasing costs, he says, leaving super powers such as Texas and Ohio State playing each other twice a year to pad their schedules.

"I don't really believe that," Horn said, "but it's going to be very low key."

For example, Horn says football at Long Beach State raises only $15,000 a year, and donations are keeping the program alive.

Football is just part of the growing financial burden at colleges, added Horn, in Miami Beach to explore the need for athletic reforms as part of the meeting of the American Association of State Colleges.

Robert C. James, commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference and also a panel member, says colleges "have found it increasingly difficult to maintain a balance between athletic income and expenditures. It takes very little argumentation to demonstrate that this situation cannot long continue."

The third panelist, George H. Hanford, executive vice president of the College Entrance Examination Board, outlined a vicious circle encompassing professional sports, the media and women demanding equal treatment, "aggravating an already serious financial problem" and leading to "new pressures on athletic departments and on coaches to produce winning teams."

"Because winning depends so much on material, the unethical recruiting and subsidy of able young athletes continues to intensify."

He added that the pressure is prompting recruiters "to falsify transcripts, Lucius Allen did his best Friday night to make the Lakers look good in the controversial deal which sent popular Jim Price to Milwaukee.

Allen pumped in 24 points, grabbed nine rebounds, handed off eight assists and stole five passes as the Lakers broke a four-game losing streak by beating the Philadelphia 76ers, 105-99.

A crowd of 10,868, smallest at the Forum this season, had some anxious moments as the Lakers blew an 18-point first-half lead. But Allen came off the bench in the final 6½ minutes to give them the lift they needed.

The slender guard, whose quickness does create, more penetration and this better shots for his teammates, took charge by hitting four consecutive jumpers, including one with 3:04 remaining which put the Lakers ahead for good, 98-96.

Philadelphia pinned its hopes on Billy Cunningham ham down the stretch, feeding him on every play, but the veteran forward ruined an otherwise fine performance by missing six consecutive shots.

After the 76ers moved ahead 96-94 with 3:46 left, they failed to convert their next nine shots until Cunningham scored with two seconds to go. He finished with 27 points.

Happy Hairston, as usual, was a pillar of strength on the backboards, grabbing 24, including 14 in the first period to tie Gene Wiley's 12-year-old club record.

He also made the most poignant post-game comment:

"After losing four in a row, it's nice to beat any field with a stiff knee."

Jordan falls to Compton

BY PAUL MCLEOD
Staff Writer

Derrick Martin needed only 120 yards rushing to climb above the 1,000 yard mark this season, and although he got more than enough yardage against Jordan Friday night, it didn't come easy.

Martin fought off a knee injury early in the second quarter and eventually gained 161 yards on 30 carries to lead Compton past the Panthers, 13-6 on Jordan's field.

The loss marked the Panthers' first season without a win since the Moore League was formed in 1957.

Martin, a two-time all-Moore League selection, finished his final high school season with 1,041 yards.

Martin had to fight for every yard as the Panther defense keyed on him, holding most of his gains under five yards.

Martin carried the brunt of the early Tarbabe offense, guiding Compton to a 6-0 halftime lead.

As Martin spearheaded the Tarbabe attack, Jordan's offense managed only one first down in the first half. The Panthers added only two more during the second to compare with the Tarbabe's six.

The Panthers were out-gained in total offense, 331-69.

After a scoreless first period, Compton got on the scoreboard soon after Martin limped off the field with a stiff knee.

Finding the going rough without their No. 1 rusher, the Tarbabe took to the air.

Mike Freeman guided Compton to the Jordan 20 where on fourth and 11 he climaxed the 14-play drive with a pin-point touchdown loss to tight end Wesley Austin, who was slanting over the middle.

Jordan tied the score as time ran out in the third quarter. The Panthers moved 85 yards in four plays. The biggest gain came when quarterback Tim Mighton raced for 15 yards, fumbled and teammate Don Montgomery picked it up and ran another 15 yards to the Compton 30, where a personal foul penalty on the tackle moved the Panthers to the Compton 15.

Two plays later Mighton hit Steve Rose for 10 yards on a tackle eligible play to tie the score, 6-6. Mighton's extra point kick was blocked.

Martin returned and moved over the 1,000 yard mark on his first carry of the fourth quarter when he raced 34 yards from the Compton 36 to the Panther 30. Three plays

RICH ROBERTS

A founder's view of World Football

"The one thing guaranteed when you start a new league is that everyone is sweetness and smiles until the first shot is fired. Then all hell breaks loose."

"Ideally, you accept only the wealthiest, most businesslike and most dedicated men to own the teams. Realistically, you take what you can get."

"They all say they understand that they are not apt to make money for a few years... but once the red ink starts to run, some of them start to run for the hills."

The words are those of Gary Davidson, contained in his book "Breaking the Game Wide Open" (Athens, $8.95), due to go on sale next week as his World Football League dream continues its struggle for survival.

The significance is that Davidson, through author Bill Libby of Westminster, speaks from his experience in founding the American Basketball Association and World Hockey Association in prophesying the factors that brought his own ouster as WFL commissioner and could ultimately destroy the league. The transcript was completed during the first week or two of the WFL season before most of the problems developed.

DAVIDSON SAYS, "Every league needs a dictator. Without one, there is no way to get a group of these guys to agree on anything. They'll eat one another alive."

"Pete Rozelle is a dictator, but smart enough and tough enough and endowed with enough authority to have brought the National Football League to a status of success unsurpassed in professional sports."

Clearly, Davidson lacked Rozelle's clout once the WFL was launched. He knew how to build it but he couldn't sail it.

He admits with far greater candor than ever before that "the original announcement of franchises in a new league usually are subject to sudden and swift shifts. Often, ownership and financing are still unsettled at the time of such announcements."

FLASHBACK TO last winter at the Marriott Hotel in Los Angeles. A wide-eyed Larry Hatfield is introduced to the media as the owner of the Southern California Sun.

"Often," Davidson continues, "men who are considering sponsoring a franchise come and sit in on announcement affairs and accept being passed off as set owners when, in fact, they are far from ready to commit themselves. They want to see how the press and public accept the announcement."

"It is a selling job the founding fathers have to do to convince prospective sponsors to make their move. But no one will say I deceived them. I laid it out for them... the potential for losses as well as profits."

Davidson says his biggest disappointments in forming the WFL was being forced out of Toronto and being unable to place franchises in Seattle, Tampa and Phoenix, "largely because of NFL interest in those (three) towns."

BUT HE APPLIED the philosophy he used in organizing the WHA.

"Where no one wanted a franchise in a city we wanted, we tried to find someone. When we couldn't find a single strong individual, we settled for a strong group. When we couldn't find a strong group, we settled for a weak one. You know that inevitably some will not work out and will have to be replaced."

Detroit. Jacksonville. Houston. New York.

It's clear that Davidson knew what he was getting into, but he never was a practical person.

Don Regan, his longtime friend and classmate at UCLA law school who succeeded him as WFL commissioner, also speaks candidly, although at times with tongue in cheek:

"He really is the creative side of our partnership. I'm the conservative side. I'm a much better lawyer because I'm more interested in details. He has more guts than good sense."

"He has a bigger ego than I do. I know I'm the brains behind him, but he won't admit it. It's all right. It's worked."

NOT ALWAYS, Davidson says. "This is the way I make my money," but it's now likely that he will earn very little from the WFL. Only a small percentage of the franchise fees was ever paid.

Troubled franchises in the ABA or WHA could be bailed out for $150,000 or $200,000, and only one or two at a time required emergency transfusions. No player ever went without a paycheck.

In the WFL, the overhead is such and the deterioration so general that it seems the only thing left to do is sew everybody up and make their last days as comfortable as possible.

Davidson has lost not only his league but, in the last few months, his marriage and finally his credibility. He says in the book that perhaps it wasn't all his fault, a plea to which every man is entitled.

Unpredictable Huskies furnish opposition Records, roses possible for SC today

By LOEL SCHRADER

It could be a day of records and roses for USC.

The Trojans will attempt to equal the Pacific-8 Conference record of 24 games without a defeat and Anthony Davis will be aiming for O.J. Simpson's school career rushing mark today when Washington furnishes the opposition at 1:30 p.m. in the Coliseum.

USC is favored by 22 points to win its 10th consecutive game from the Huskies, who sustained a 52-26 beating from Cal last week.

The Trojans probably will have their ears tuned to announcements from Corvallis, where UCLA is playing Oregon State. Should the Trojans win and the Bruins lose, USC would clinch its seventh Rose Bowl invitation in nine years.

USC is 4-0-1 in the league and the Bruins are 3-1-1.

The Huskies are 2-3 in the Pacific-8 and 4-5 overall in a campaign which has had high and low points.

Three weeks ago, they appeared unbeatable in a 66-0 victory over Oregon, then followed with a 31-9 triumph over UCLA.

But they have not been consistent. The Huskies lost a 23-9 decision to Oregon State in mid-October and were totally outclassed by Cal last week.

Pitt has tough road to bowl: Notre Dame

Combined News Services

The quickest way to ruin a conversation with University of Pittsburgh coach Johnny Majors is to mention the word "bowl."

His club has been offered a bid to play in the Liberty Bowl on Dec. 16 against Maryland if it can beat fourth-ranked and Orange Bowl-bound Notre Dame at South Bend today.

Majors doesn't care for that added pressure.

"I'm not concerned with bowl talk, period," says Majors, whose club has compiled a 7-2 record but has lost 10 successive times to Notre Dame.

"I'm going to be promoting better execution and gang tackling instead of promoting bowls. There's not much I can do about the bowls, anyhow. But there is something I can do about gang tackling."

Pitt, which enters the game a 19-point underdog, has won five games in a row and holds the No. 1 ranking in the East, and a No. 16 ranking nationally.

"What can you say about Notre Dame? This is a typical Notre Dame team... big and strong," says Majors. "Very seldom do they lose at home."

"They've already lost at South Bend to Purdue this year. Their front people are awesome. We played some physically strong teams when I was coaching in the Big Eight, but I don't recall a team that combined more strength and agility."

One thing in Pitt's favor will be the return to action of Tony Dorsett, the team's top runner and one of the best in the nation. Dorsett, who missed last Saturday's game with an injured ankle, turned in a career high individual rushing performance against a Notre Dame club last year when he gained 209 yards in the Panthers' 31-10 loss.

There are still eight vacant spots remaining in the 11 major college post-season bowls and one of those should be filled today with the expected announcement of fifth-ranked Auburn to the Gator Bowl.

Auburn, still in contention for the Southeastern Conference title, reportedly has received a bid to play in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., on Dec. 30. The Tigers' opponent in the that game is likely to be the runnerup in the Southwest Conference, either Texas A&M, Baylor or Texas. The SWC race, however, may not be decided until Nov. 29, with the winner automatically going to the Cotton Bowl.

UCLA can't afford to look past Beavers

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer

CORVALLIS, Ore.—Mental preparation may outweigh physical readiness when UCLA and Oregon State tangle today.

In three of the past four seasons, Bruin teams have stumbled the week-end prior to the traditional city championship with USC. A homecoming victory for the Beavers today would ensure another Trojan trip to Pasadena on New Year's Day.

Oregon State, a four-point underdog, is still smarting from the 56-14 shellacking UCLA administered a year ago and would dearly love to pound the Bruins into submission on the Parker Stadium AstroTurf.

UCLA coach Dick Vermeil has called the Beavers "the most improved team in the Pacific-8 Conference." If that's not warning enough to his players, he can point out some comparative scores:

Oregon State 23, Washington 9 and Oregon State 17, Washington State 3.

Washington mangled the undermanned Bruins, 31-9, while UCLA was lucky to hold off Washington State, 17-13.

BEAVER HEAD coach Dee Andros has posted 2-9 records the last two years and appears headed in that direction again this term. However, a win today and another in the Civil War against Oregon next week would leave him 4-7 over-all and 4-3 in Pac-8 play.

"I think you've got to score at least three times to beat the Bruins," said the Great Pumpkin of a Bruin defense which ranks second in the conference against scoring (14 points a game) and has allowed only two touchdowns running in the last four games.

Though right halfback Wendell Tyler will miss the final two games after elbow surgery and flanker Wally Henry is doubtful after straining a knee in practice, the Bruins are healthier than they have been in weeks.

Noseguards Mike Mar-

linez and Greg Norfleet return at full strength and linebacker Fulton Kuykendall will play some. Andros is prepared.

"They look like a solid football team to me. Sure they have some bumps and bruises, but this is the type of thing you expect this time of year."

"The Bruins are not going to overlook us. There are no qualms in my mind they'll be 100 per cent ready. They're going to come in here and try to play this one as if it were the Rose Bowl."

Maybe Vermeil should let Andros conduct his pre-game pep talk.

Oregon State's offense had been unproductive until it reeled off 302 yards afoot against Washington State last week. Until then the Beavers were averaging only 133 yards a game rushing.

"We're not sure if it was their game plan to run on Washington State or not," said a concerned Vermeil. "We're prepared for them to run right at us, though."

Suddenly OSU quarterback Alvin White, who threw for a miserable 43 per cent with only five touchdowns but 23 interceptions last fall, has become a running threat, giving OSU a triumvirate of steady ground gainers.

ELVIN MOMON leads the club with 412 yards and a 4.3 average followed by fullback Charlie Smith next at 281 and 4.1 and White, 261 and 3.0.

White galloped for 106 yards against Washington State, the first Beaver to surpass 100 yards in 22 games.

"To stop them inside is being over-optimistic," said Lynn Stiles, the Bruin defensive coordinator. "We've got to find a way to slow them down. They got over 300 yards on Washington State compared to our 198."

Oregon State ranks last in stopping the run, but first against the pass. The latter is a deceptive statistic because teams have thrown sparingly against the Beavers.

Owens' teams are well-coached and play extremely hard against us," said USC coach John McKay Friday.

Owens wasn't ready to concede defeat upon arriving in the Southland Friday.

"I think we're ready to bounce back," said the Washington coach.

The Huskies have lost one defensive tackle, Mike Green, due to an injury last Saturday, but regained another when all-conference Dave Pear returned after missing three games.

The Huskies have yielded an average of only 197 yards per game on the ground. They have been vulnerable to the forward pass, giving up 187 yards and one touchdown per game.

Offensively, Washington is led by senior quarterback Dennis Fitzpatrick and sophomore fullback Robin Earl.

Fitzpatrick has compiled 980 yards passing and running while Earl, a 6-5, 240-pound converted tight end, has rushed for 422 yards since moving to the backfield in the fifth game of the season.

Davis needs 157 yards to surpass Simpson's career rushing record of 3,423 and only 15 to achieve his third consecutive 1,000-yard season.

But the Trojans would forego individual records for a victory today.

"We're not going to say and think anything about UCLA until the Washington game has been played," pledged McKay early in the week.

Not a bad idea.

A LITTLE OPTIMISM FOR VIKINGS

BY PAUL McLEOD
Staff Writer

A degree of optimism for Long Beach followers prevails for tonight's Viking-Pasadena City College clash at Pasadena's Horrell Field.

Game time for the Pasadena homecoming is 7:30.

Pasadena head coach Myron Tarkanian calls Long Beach "a greatly improved ball club." LBCC defensive coordinator Roy Woolbright is "looking forward to playing the best," Viking defensive line coach Jim Murphy says his squad is "ready" and head coach Gary Jacobsen says bluntly, "Don't be surprised if we beat them."

Pasadena, heavily favored, is 8-0 and rated first in the nation but, oddly enough, only third in the state behind College of the Sequoias and its next Metropolitan Conference opponent, El Camino.

Each team will be with-ning backs. Pasadena lost halfback Lavell Sanders with a shoulder separation during last week's 27-24 victory over Bakersfield.

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

In addition to scale and spider mites, several of the prevalent insect pests are, believe it or not, aphids, and white flies.

The white flies have been excessively numerous. Some gardeners have had difficulty controlling them with the various kinds of sprays used.

The white flies have been found on mint, iris, fuchsias, hydrangeas, and other varieties of plants. They usually can be found on the underside of the leafage. When the bush is shaken, they immediately swarm out in a flying mass, then settle back in the bush.

Naturally the logical time to nip them in the bud is when they begin to emerge. As an example, we've seen circular, small gray color platelets sticking to the bearded iris leaves. They are a grayish color.

GARDENERS can get better control of the pests by adding a horticultural wetting agent to the insecticide that has been mixed in water. There are several such materials available at nurseries.

The wetting agent acts as a sticker. As the water runs off the leaves and branches, some of the sticker material with the insecticide residue adheres to the plant which then lasts longer as a control.

The most effective method of spraying plants with insecticide or fungicide is to be sure plants have had a thorough drink of water in advance of spraying. Then, after the plants have been thoroughly sprayed, the soil under and around the plants also should be sprayed. This insures maximum control. Additionally, gardeners should spray any nearby non-infested plants too, just in case there may be some strays setting up house-keeping there. (There are also insecticide sprays for indoor plants.) Several gardeners have told us that they use a granular systemic applied to soil. They had no problem with white flies.

SOME gardeners still can't understand how they get insects on house plants. Some think the pests crawl through the screens, then fly, crawl, creep, or somehow find their way to the plants.

It seems as if the pests have radar to seek out the plants.

There are several ways insects find their way into a house and to the plants.

First, a possible factor is that a few undetected pests arrive on purchased or gift plants.

A more likely factor is that it's the gardener's fault for not washing the flowers well with a sharp stream of water before bringing them indoors. This method helps avoid possible scattering of insects indoors. The same is true for cut flowers.

ANOTHER possibility, too, is brushing past plants in the garden and having the pests cling to the clothing. Shoes sometimes are the carriers. Gardeners should brush off garden clothes and shoes before entering the house.

Mealy bugs are especially hard to control indoors. At a recent garden clinic, a woman told me she easily controlled mealy bugs by blowing cigarette smoke directly onto them, causing the pests to drop off. She promptly squashed them! Maybe some of you readers who smoke might want to experiment on mealy bugs. Please let me know if this method doesn't work. I wouldn't want to mislead my readers.

Jobs for November

There's still time to buy quality 1974 growing roses in containers to set out in the ground. The roses will be one year's jump ahead of those planted bare root early next year.

Grow some vegetables in among the garden plants, or edging a walk or driveway, as well as in a flower bed area.

Camellias can now be transplanted from one area of the garden to another or into large containers. They should be watered several times in advance of transplanting, with vitamin B-1 added to the water.

Antidrug aide hits pot trials

WASHINGTON (AP) — People who use marijuana should not be prosecuted as criminals, a top White House official said Friday.

Dr. Robert L. DuPont, head of the White House Special Action Office for Drug Abuse Prevention, made the statement in a speech to the National Organization for Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML).

"Criminal penalties have clearly failed to prevent widespread use of marijuana," DuPont said. He said some 26 million people have experimented with pot and one-third of that number use it regularly.

In terms of arrest, DuPont said that last year 420,000 people were arrested for marijuana offenses, a third higher than in 1972 and more than double the figure four years ago.

Most of those arrested are between the ages of 18 and 25, and although the majority are not convicted, they have "suffered the trauma of arrest ... (and) will carry around that criminal arrest record."

"For those convicted, the stigma of criminality may close some doors of economic opportunity ... and for some of them, these laws may close the doors of a jail cell," DuPont said.

In addition, the enforcement of marijuana laws is selective and "society's most potent legal sanction is applied sporadically, often unwillingly ... and with an unequal hand," DuPont said.

DuPont pointed out that many legislatures have acted at least once in reducing penalties for marijuana use from a felony to a misdemeanor.

But he said a "misdemeanor is still a criminal offense. And the criminal label does not comfortably apply."

DuPont said legal prohibition against pot possession should not be done away with, "but the key question today is whether the benefits of deterrence are available at a lower social cost than the current criminal sanction. I think that they are."

And DuPont said one of the principles of a current legal trend is the "criminal sanction should be reserved for morally reprehensible conduct and should not be diluted by application to conduct without serious social consequence."

The Oregon experiment of making marijuana possession a civil violation with a maximum fine of $100 is being watched for its effectiveness, he said.

But DuPont also said recent studies "seem to indicate that there may be serious risk to marijuana users."

Many studies, he said, report laboratory findings of "uncertain clinical significance," but he said one of the findings of the new research has found the active ingredient in marijuana — delta-9-tetrahydrocannabinol — is extremely soluble in fat.

That means it collects in fatty tissues throughout the body including the brain, he said. While there is no conclusive evidence available, DuPont said, the result of this collection may be a reduction in the capacity of the body to fight infection and could produce possible genetic mutations.

Other preliminary data also indicates the effects of marijuana on the body, under some circumstances, may be more widespread than had been thought, DuPont said.

Administration officials have said that by letting DuPont go public on the issue, President Ford hopes to continue his policy of reconciliation in the belief that "more people are hurt by criminal laws against marijuana use than are hurt by the drug itself."

But a White House spokesman said President Ford has not changed his views about federal laws that make marijuana possession and smoking a criminal offense.

Citizens hit bid to sell liquor at service station

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A service station owner who wants to pump booze as well as gas has fanned a storm of outrage in this industrial community.

More than 200 persons have signed petitions to the Alcoholic Beverage Control office in San Francisco, urging denial of a request by Edward Simas, president of Xtra Oil Co., to sell liquor at his service station here.

City planner William Costanzo has sent Simas a notice that, even if the ABC permit is granted, he will have to get a new use permit from the planning commission before selling a drop.

"Police already have problems of juvenile drinking in that area," said police public relations officer Paul Ziemer.

Monday: ???

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: You can "settle in" this year on whatever plateau of development is appropriate to your age and stage of growth. Conservative, traditional approaches prove productive, particularly if you've been pursuing other courses lately and are switching methods now. Today's natives have strong urges for power in one form or another. Many are gifted in theatrical arts and magic.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Despite your efforts to avoid work and business, both enter into this Sunday and must be dealt with. Items you stumble onto need sorting out.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Impromptu outings, jealously travels turn out well. Avoid overextension, haste and fatigue by starting early. Pauses for rest and reflection are in order.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): A current of interest and action carries you away from your usual mounds. A recent event inspires you to special volunteer work.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Family flare-ups are probably inescapable. Resolve them early by finding the source of the problem. Renew relationships; initiate homecomings.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Do not let activities bring you fresh experience. Watch expenses, cash outlays.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Pursue favorite hobbies and recreation that can be shared with loved ones. Social contact and how you deal with it are important to your future.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Fall back on familiar traditions today. Your self-restraint, sympathetic understanding make others happy.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Health and its care should not be forgotten despite a rush of activity. Travel and visits are favored. Stop at points of interest en route.

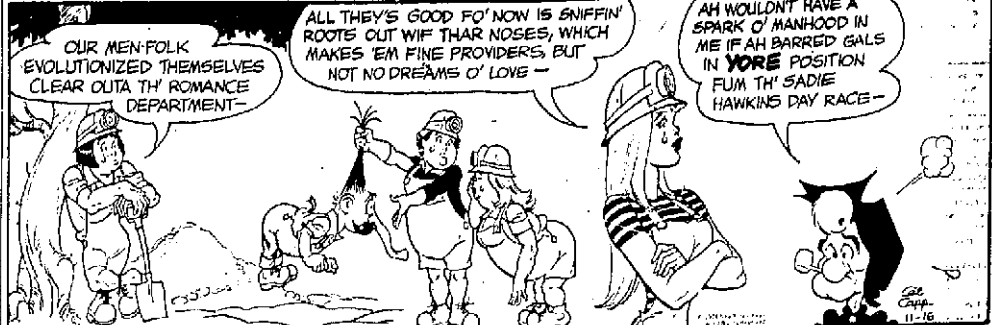

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friends develop difficult moods and meddle in financial matters. Look for hidden facts and lost objects. Settle budget so you can close accounts promptly.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You have something extra going for you now, plus friendly acceptance where you haven't really expected it. Skip business, commercial sidelines altogether.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A basic understanding comes about quietly amid complex events. Pursue details tomorrow. Meanwhile, there's much to do.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Accept friends as they are, but not their well-meant advice. Social activities bring you fresh experience. Watch expenses, cash outlays.
